LGBT Book Reviews by Terri Schlichenmeyer

“BUZZ: A STIMULATING HISTORY OF THE SEX TOY”

BY HALLIE LIEBERMAN

c.2017, Pegasus Books | $26.95 | 359 pages

Double-A.

It has many uses, that little word-dash-letter. It's good for future baseball players. Good for a pre-teen girl. Great, if you're a student trying to bring those grades up. And, as you'll see in "Buzz: A Stimulating History of the Sex Toy" by Hallie Lieberman, if you're an adult, double-A is something you never want to run out of...

A dozen years ago, to make a little money, Hallie Lieberman found an unusual job: she was a home-party sex toy salesperson in a state where the selling of sex toys was illegal. Ever afraid of being arrested, she stuck to the "script" that the company gave her; it was stilted and full of euphemisms, and the job was demeaning and embarrassing. She felt like she "wasn't actually teaching people anything."

From her PhD studies, Lieberman learned that "sex toys were ancient." Some thirty millennia ago, ancient Germans carved phallic objects, though some historians argue that sex mightn't have been their intention. At any rate, the practice of using artificial devices for sexual pleasure spread across Europe and into Asia and, soon after the Middle Ages, mentions of sex toys began showing up in literature.

Closer to home and beginning in Victorian times, rectal dilators and vibrators were made in the U.S. and sold as “medical devices,” approved by doctors; the former were made by “respected rubber companies,” while the latter were available for discreet purchase in department stores for decades. Until laws were created against it, you could even have the devices mailed to your home; later, to circumvent those and other laws meant to keep sex toys out of the hands of everyday citizens, vibrators, dildoes, and dilators were sold as “novelties.”

In 1965, a ventriloquist who was an engineer by profession started manufacturing sex toys; in the early 1970s, a paraplegic welder began making them for women, and advising the disabled on their use. Others joined the revolution until, in 1972 (and though they'd long been a staple of sleaze), sex toys gained respectability inside a narrow waterbed-store-turned-sex-shop run by two gay men, hetero people welcome...

Of course, there's so much more to this story but here's one interesting thing about this book: while you might think it'd be titillating with maybe a few nudge-nudge-winks, that's not the case. Author Hallie Lieberman doesn't do that to her readers.

Instead, what you get is exactly what its subtitle promises: “Buzz” is a history of sex toys, from ancient times to modern day, and its use by straight people, the disabled, the LGBT community, and feminists. Through the narrative, you'll see how advocates tied sex toys to equality and self-confidence, and how the struggle to make the devices acceptable unfolded but is still not over (including a surprise-not-surprise toward the end). That's serious stuff and Lieberman offers it in a well-rounded way, though not without lightheartedness when appropriate.

This isn't a book to shock – it's meant to inform and that's accomplished, enjoyably. The prurient, the curious, and pop-culture fans will love “Buzz,” no batteries required.

MY BIG GAY LIFE

Brad Loekle

CULINARY QUERIES

I love to cook. I always have. When I was a little boy, as soon as I was old enough to make spaghetti and meat sauce for my parents; I'd pretend it was my own restaurant. I'd make little menus for "Chez Brad" and list whatever I'd just learned how to cook as "tonight's special". It was usually also the only option on the menu. I was a diva of a chef. And since Valentine's Day tends to see many people eating out in fancy restaurants I thought I'd share some of my extensive culinary knowledge as well as my feelings about some of the more ridiculous culinary trends and topics. Oh, and just so you don't think my culinary training ended at Chez Brad; it's worth noting I worked for various celebrity chefs at two and three star restaurants in New York City for a decade before being a gay jester started paying the bills.

Truffle Oil: I love it. I'm sure many of you do too. It's in or on everything nowadays. Fun Fact: it's also, basically, perfume. It's sure a shit not the oil of truffles (which is impossible) nor is it, 99% of the time, oil that's infused with real truffles. Because frankly that would be a waste of truffles that are, as one of my former bosses once said, "go-fuck-your-mother expensive". So just know your precious truffle oil is, essentially, the Drakar Noir of cooking.

Confit: Everyone stop using the word confit. Unless you're talking about duck or some other fatty, gamey animal part. Confit means, quite specifically, to render in it's own fat. Ducks are so fatty and delicious that you can actually render off the fat from them, slowly cooking the meat, and then let the meat come to room temperature still in the fat. The solidified fat then acts as a preservative (this was very valuable back in the days before Viking refrigerators). So other than duck or some other fat-ass animal there is no such thing as Tomato “confit”... unless you’re slowly cooking tomatoes in duck fat... which will end up just tasting like duck fat... which I’m also not saying I still wouldn’t eat.

Molten Chocolate Cake: Enough. We lied to you. It was the 90’s, Food Network had just taken off, and, to be honest, back then most fancy restaurants still didn’t have dedicated pastry chefs on full time. They were generally trained chefs and cooks who had one semester of pastry in cooking school. Some asshole figured out he could charge more for dazzling “just baked” “molten center” cake and that it would be ooh-la-la. It’s an undercooked cake. That’s all. It’s not witchery. You know what you get when you overcook a molten chocolate cake.... A normal fucking cake.

Chilean Sea Bass: Does not exist. It is not from Chile and it is certainly not sea bass. It is... drum roll, please... Patagonian Tooth Fish. But no one wanted to pay thirty dollars for TOOTH FISH so we changed the name. It’s pure Mad Men trickery. Oh, and you want to know why it’s so delicious? It’s fatty as all hell. So don’t be shocked when your tooth fish has more fat than the filet mignon.

I could go on like this for pages, but I don’t want to ruin all your food fantasies all at once. I will also warn you that restaurants really lay the bougie culinary terms on thick around Valentine’s Day... how else could we get away with charging your $150 a person for $23 worth of food?! Happy VD everybody! And a special shout out to all my peeps that will die alone!!

Brad Loekle was a semi-finalist on NBC’s “Last Comic Standing”. He can be seen every week on TruTV’s “World’s Dumbest”, has written for Joan Rivers on E! “Fashion Police” & tours internationally. His book, “My Big Gay Life” is available on Amazon and at www.bradloekle.com

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Sometimes it's tough living on a small island.

We don't have giant Imax theaters, we don't have huge shopping malls, we don't have a super Walmart but what we do have is some of the best theater you will ever find in a city with a population of only 25,000 people.

Between the Waterfront Playhouse and The Red Barn Theatre, as well as a few others, Key West always has some great theater options.

The Waterfront Playhouse has been entertaining Key West audiences for over 75 years. Located in the heart of Key West's historic Mallory Square, this not-for-profit, professional theater attracts locals and tourists with a wide range of theatrical fare. The Playhouse is an intimate 150-seat theater located steps from Key West's nightly sunset celebration.

This year, the Waterfront Playhouse is featuring some amazing plays such as 1776, Hand To God, Avenue Q (being brought back after a very successful run last year), and The Legend of Georgia McBride,

Just around the corner, The Red Barn was originally built as a carriage house in 1829. When the advent of the automobile made the carriage house obsolete, the "barn" was adopted by the Key West Community Players, who offered a variety of plays on its stage throughout the 1940s.

In 1980, a spirited group of actors and technicians renovated the theatre, opening the doors of the Red Barn Theatre. The very cozy feeling of the theater really makes the show come to life.

This years features are: 20th Century Blues, Always... Patsy Cline, Native Gardens, and Cry it Out.

If theater isn't your thing, we have plenty of live entertainment available at places such as The Studios of Key West, The Tennessee Williams Theater, and The Key West Theater.

The Studios of Key West is hosting Jeffrey Chappell & Karen Kevra, Seth Glier, and Ellen Cherry.

The Tennessee Williams Theater is hosting Chubby Checker, The Little River Band , Stomp and Kinky Boots.

The Key West Theater is hosting Jefferson Starship, Michael McDonald, and Kevin Nealon.

This is just a small sample of the many shows playing at these venues. I highly encourage you to check out their websites and see the full listing of amazing entertainment available.

STAY SAFE RIDE SMART

A bicycle is a great way to get around, but stay safe by following the rules of the road.

- A bicycle is like any other vehicle, so you must follow the rules of the road.
 - Bicycles must follow all traffic controls such as signs and signals.
 - Bicycles cannot travel the wrong way down a one way street.
 - Bicycles must be ridden on the right hand side of a two way street.
 - You must signal all turns with hand signals.
 - Headsets cannot be worn while cycling.
 - Riding a bike while under the influence can get you a DUI in Florida.
- Lights are required between sunset and sunrise
 - A white light is required in front and a red light in the rear.
- Riding on the sidewalk or crosswalk is permitted but with these provisions
 - Pedestrians have the right of way. Yield to pedestrians.
 - When passing pedestrians, you must signal your intent before doing so.
- Anyone under the age of 16 must wear a helmet.

Here are a few additional tips that you may find helpful.

- Lock up your bike at all times. If not, you'll probably be walking home.
 - Pass the lock through the frame and the front tire.
 - Be careful not to lock your bike to an adjoining bike by accident.
 - If you lock your bike to private property, it may be impounded.
- When approaching occupied cars, be ready to react if the door opens.

Enjoy your time seeing the best of Key West!

Hey Kids! I got an awful lot of Valentine's day questions leading into this month so I thought I'd rattle off a bunch of them real quick, since none of them were terribly involved or required profound thoughts from my rapidly failing white-haired noggin....

Dear Nana,

When's the last time you made love?

Well, it's love you're talking about making it was the Carter Administration. Those were crazy times! We had no gasoline so everyone just sat in their cars in the garage... there wasn't enough gas to kill ourselves so we'd go at it like rabbits! But that was with my late husband. I've had sex since... but never love. At my age, I just don't have enough time left for love. A quickie is all I can spare.

Dear Nana,

Where's the craziest place you ever had sex?

Well, I'd like to think there might be one or two crazy times left. I wouldn't mind if "my death bed" was the final answer. But, so far I'd have to say on the bridge of a cruise liner about 40 years ago. Those "behind the scenes" tours were VERY thorough back then.

Dear Nana,

What's the sweetest give you ever got and, also, ever gave on Valentine's Day?

Got: A Cadillac.

Gave: Head.

(They were the same year, if you were wondering.)

Dear Nana,

If you could have any man, living or dead, as your valentine who would it be?

I try to avoid getting romantically involved with dead people. But at my age it sort of comes with the territory. I have to say, if I was about 50 years younger and have the right climbing gear; I'd give that Dwayne Johnson something to smile about.

Dear Nana,

What should someone single do on Valentine's Day to not feel left out?

Fuck a stranger.

I hope this has fulfilled all your romantic needs for the season!
Love- Nana
