LEZ
GO OUT

I
It's officially pants weather! I wait all year for this brief month of coolness. The truth is that any time it's below the 80's here I push the boundaries of my cuffs as low as they can go. Often I regret it and sweat a bit but right now, at 72-74 degrees I am blissfully in blue jeans. I even carry a jean jacket for post sunset celebration.

My wife and I bought an annual pass to Ft Zachary Taylor state park and have made that our secret happy place on Sundays. One of my favorite things to do is go to Gordon Foods and get a small beef tenderloin on the way to the beach. Ft. Zach has phenomenal grills with a solid plate on one side. Brilliant. I sear the tenderloin on all sides, move the coals around and slow cook it while we go play on the water, sleep in a hammock or walk the beach. Within a couple of hours... perfection. Sliced up, it's finger food with dipping sauces for days. A very civilized way to spend a Sunday I can tell you.

It's a little known fact that Ft. Zach is one of the best snorkel spots you could see while in Key West. The multiple rock walls make great hiding places for lobster, fish and other fun sea life. It's kind of one of the best kept secrets and certainly an AMAZING sunset spot. Iconic shots usually include on of the many schooners drifting toward the sun as she sets. Get there early, watch the unique swimwear (or tiny pieces of fabric with strings on both the men and the women) walk by from the perfect vantage point of your highly portable/packable hammock.

If you're looking for me, I'll be near the sexy grill with the sizzling beef, a huge sun hat, barely awake tucked in my two-person hammock with my sweet wife.

Lez Go Out and enjoy the less alcoholic (sorry - no outside alcohol allowed at the beach) and gentle breezes of the gulf side while you're here. You won't regret it.

IMPORTANT FACTS FOR BIKTARVY®

This is only a brief summary of important information about BIKTARVY and does not replace talking to your healthcare provider about your condition and your treatment.

(bik-TAR-vee)

MOST IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY may cause serious side effects, including:

▶ Worsening of hepatitis B (HBV) infection. Your healthcare provider will test you for HBV. If you have both HIV-1 and HBV, your HBV may suddenly get worse if you stop taking BIKTARVY. Do not stop taking BIKTARVY without first talking to your healthcare provider, as they will need to check your health regularly for several months, and may give you HBV medicine.

ABOUT BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY is a complete, 1-pill, once-a-day prescription medicine used to treat HIV-1 in adults and children who weigh at least 55 pounds. It can either be used in people who have never taken HIV-1 medicines before, or people who are replacing their current HIV-1 medicines and whose healthcare provider determines they meet certain requirements.

BIKTARVY does not cure HIV-1 or AIDS. HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

Do NOT take BIKTARVY if you also take a medicine that contains:

- ▶ dofetilide
- ▶ rifampin
- ▶ any other medicines to treat HIV-1

POSSIBLE SIDE EFFECTS OF BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY may cause serious side effects, including:

- ▶ Those in the "Most Important Information About BIKTARVY" section.
- ▶ Changes in your immune system. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections that may have been hidden in your body. Tell your healthcare provider if you have any new symptoms after you start taking BIKTARVY.

- ▶ Kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys. If you develop new or worse kidney problems, they may tell you to stop taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Too much lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis), which is a serious but rare medical emergency that can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: weakness or being more tired than usual, unusual muscle pain, being short of breath or fast breathing, stomach pain with nausea and vomiting, cold or blue hands and feet, feel dizzy or lightheaded, or a fast or abnormal heartbeat.
- ▶ Severe liver problems, which in rare cases can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow, dark "tea-colored" urine, light-colored stools, loss of appetite for several days or longer, nausea, or stomach-area pain.
- ▶ The most common side effects of BIKTARVY in clinical studies were diarrhea (6%), nausea (6%), and headache (5%).

These are not all the possible side effects of BIKTARVY. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you have any new symptoms while taking BIKTARVY.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.FDA.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Your healthcare provider will need to do tests to monitor your health before and during treatment with BIKTARVY.

BEFORE TAKING BIKTARVY

Tell your healthcare provider if you:

- ▶ Have or have had any kidney or liver problems, including hepatitis infection.
- ▶ Have any other health problems.
- ▶ Are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if BIKTARVY can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Are breastfeeding (nursing) or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed. HIV-1 can be passed to the baby in breast milk.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take:

- ▶ Keep a list that includes all prescription and over-the-counter medicines, antacids, laxatives, vitamins, and herbal supplements, and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist.

- ▶ BIKTARVY and other medicines may affect each other. Ask your healthcare provider and pharmacist about medicines that interact with BIKTARVY, and ask if it is safe to take BIKTARVY with all your other medicines.

HOW TO TAKE BIKTARVY

Take BIKTARVY 1 time each day with or without food.

"HIGH-RISK HOMOSEXUAL: A MEMOIR" BY EDGAR GOMEZ
c.2022, Soft Skull Press | $16.95 | 304 pages

Here. Try this.

It fits you, but the color isn't flattering. It's too long, too short, too tight, too loose. That's not your style, so try something else until you find the thing that looks like you. The perfect thing is out there. As in the new book "High-Risk Homosexual" by Edgar Gomez, when something's right, it's right.

He was thirteen when he figured out that he was a problem to be solved.

Edgar Gomez' mother had left him in her native Nicaragua with his tíos, just for awhile because she had to return to Florida to work. He wasn't there without her for long, but it took years for him to understand that his time with his uncles was meant to make him more masculine.

In retrospect, he says, nobody wanted him to be a man more than he did. He wanted to be liked by other kids and so he told lies in school to make himself stand out. He wanted his mother to see his love of pretty things and say that it was okay. He wanted his brother to acknowledge that Gomez was gay, and to tell him that he loved him.

Instead, after his brother left for college, Gomez got his first boyfriend, a boy he came out to but who couldn't come out to himself. He was called names in school. He came out to his mother, who freaked out about it. He befriended a drag queen, but "Princess" used him.

Things he wanted: a real boyfriend. Love. A ban on the stereotype of a macho Latinx man.

Things he still had, while in college: his mother and older brother. A tormentor-turned-mentor. A part-time job. His weirdness. His virginity.

Things he wanted to lose, while in college: his room at his mother's house. His virginity, but that wouldn't happen until later, during a painful one-afternoon-stand with a hot man who said he had a girlfriend. That hurt, both physically and emotionally but like so many things at so many times, Gomez tried not to think about it.

If he never considered what he didn't have, he says, "I wouldn't miss it."

In a way, you could say that "High-Risk Homosexual" is a book in search of a point. It's really quite random and told (mostly) linearly, but not quite. It has its high peaks, but also low valleys. And you won't care about any of this, because you'll be enjoying every bit of it.

Yeah, this memoir is good: author Edgar Gomez's literary wandering makes it feel much like an honest conversation with readers. There are wince-worthy moments that allow empathy here, and experiences that are unique but oddly ubiquitous, that leave space for a sense of sympatico. There are passages that are so wistfully uncomfortable that you might squirm, or start "snort-laughing," or want to stop a moment and just think.

And there's room for that, too, so take your time. "High-Risk Homosexual" is an affable book with just enough seriousness to make it worth a try.

MY BIG GAY LIFE

Brad Loekle

ODE TO GILES COREY

Okay, I know that almost no one will get the reference I just made. But I'm an artsy nerd and you just have to give me this one reference that tickles me and then I promise to explain. Giles Corey was a real- life American farmer... but we all know him from the play we all either read or performing in during High school: The Crucible. During the Salem Witch Trials, Giles was accused of witchcraft. Quite possibly one of the only times in American history we've had a straight white man be wrongly accused in court. I mean, the Salem Witch Trials themselves weren't exactly a sausage fest. It was mostly men destroying women. A tail as old as time! But somehow Giles and his wife ended up on the short end of the witch's broomstick and Giles was the only person sentenced to "pressing". This was done in order to try and get him to plead guilty. In the play we're told that this baller never gave in to the bastards and just kept muttering "more weight"... until after three days of this they crushed him to death. Pour one out for Giles, kids!

Giles has been on my mind a lot lately because all I see is articles about how life-changing weighted blankets are. And all I see on social media is people talking about how their weighted blanket has changed the way they sleep and they don't know how they ever lived without their weighted blanket. And then I got into my friend's bed to try their weighted blanket so that they would finally shut up about their weighted blanket. And, all I can say is: what is wrong with all you people?! What happened to you, or rather didn't happen to you, in your childhood that you now need to be lightly smothered in order to sleep at night? You couldn't all possibly have wanted to play Giles Corey that badly in High School. (See what I did there?)

Oh, I'm sorry. Do you feel too light and free in bed at night that it's almost impossible for you to fall asleep? You're soooo much better than the rest of us that the sheer weight of climate change, fascism, and your own lifetime collection of failures and disappointments hasn't created enough weight on your chest at night?! Well excuse us for breathing. For literally wanting to be able to breathe in our sleep. Something I already don't do that well because, for 20 years, I really loved the smell of cocaine. So no, Susan, I don't want a weighted blanket. I'm fully capable of dying in my sleep without the help of your dystopian duvet.

Brad Loekle's latest comedy special & album, "Brash Boys Club" is available on Amazon, AppleTV, iTunes, and other platforms. He was a semi-finalist on NBC's "Last Comic Standing". He can be seen every week on TruTV's "World's Dumbest", has written for Joan Rivers on E! "Fashion Police" & tours internationally. His book, "My Big Gay Life" is available on Amazon. ASK NANA

E-mail your questions to nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

So, I have a condition called Hemospermia. It means that sometimes there is blood in my cum. In fact, sometimes my cum looks and tastes like blood enough that it's definitely freaky if you don't know it coming. I've been seeing this new guy for a few months and I've just been telling him that I hate blow jobs as a way to avoid the subject. Do I need to tell him? Past guys have had some weird responses and I just don't know that I want to deal with that right now.

Well, Vlad, I have to say this is a new one for me. But I can tell you get that a lot so I'll just move pulsating on to the matter at hand: you're rose-colored cum. Obviously, if you stay with this guy long term, you're going to have to tell him. Even though it's not a medical "problem", significant others tend to react significantly when they find out significant information is being withheld from them. Basically, I don't think you need to tell anyone on the third date. But I do think you should mention it before you two move in together. It also depends on how into giving oral your boyfriend is. If he sucks at sucking dick, and you obviously don't care about it, then it's really more of a clinical, matter-of-fact sort of conversation. Now, if he has an oral fixation and feels you've been denying him the valuable milk, he needs to help his body grow... then it's a more intimate conversation. Just always keep in mind it's your body and your choice on when and how to share it. You can tell a lot about the other person in these sorts of conversations by how they react. So, your bloody cum might end up being a bloody good judge of character... if and when you choose to discuss it with him.

Dear Nana,

What's the easiest way to get blood out of sheets and a duvet cover?

Part of me really wants to believe that you're the boyfriend of the previous writer. So, I have two answers: one for if you are and one for if you aren't.

- If you are Vlad's boy toy, let me just say I'm happy he told you and I'm happy you took it so well that you're still with him and gingerly trying to clean up the crime scene of your love. You want to soak the stain in hydrogen peroxide and brush it out gently with a soft scrub brush. Then wash and repeat if necessary. Don't put into the dryer until the stain is gone.

- If your question is not connected to the first writer, then let me give you my condolences on either getting your first fissure or losing the baby. No matter the cause, the advice is the same. And if this wasn't a sexual or birth-related matter, then I would worry less about the sheets and more about getting out of town and changing your name and appearance. Maybe watch "Gone Girl" real quick for some pointers. Happy fleeing!

DO YOU HAVE PROBLEMS? OF COURSE YOU DO! WHY NOT LET NANA HELP YOU?!

You have a face only a mother could love. I'm not a mother.

PISCES FEB 19 - MAR 20

Do you honestly think that anyone believes your massager is for your sore muscles?

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 19

How many STDs can you have at one time?

TAURUS APR 20 - MAY 20

It's time to lose a few pounds when you need to go to a truck stop to be weighed.

GEMINI MAY 21 - JUN 20

Covid is the closest you will ever come to catching a social disease.

CANCER JUN 21 - JUL 22

So you sent yourself flowers for Valentine's day. It might have been believable if you hadn't signed the card with your own name.

LEO JUL 23 - AUG 22

Another Valentine's day alone. You should be used to that by now.

VIRGO AUG 23 - SEP 22

Doing yoga will help you touch your toes. Losing 50 pounds wouldn't hurt either.

LIBRA SEP 23 - OCT 22

Stop trying so hard to be liked. It's just not gonna happen.

SCORPIO OCT 23 - NOV 21

So you are hoping to get approved for workforce housing? Well, you have to actually work first.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 - DEC 21

Your idea of a balanced meal is McDonalds in one hand and Taco Bell in the other.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

You're scaring away the homeless. Go take a shower.
