Welcome to Paradise!

March is a great month to just sit by (or in) the pool and enjoy the sun with a nice island breeze.

Evenings are perfect for a stroll along to Mallory Square, around Duval, or across the sands of the beach.

Stop by one of our amazing restaurants and enjoy the evening breeze while the world walks by.

Enjoy!

LGBT Book Reviews by Terri Schlichenmeyer

“BERLIN 1936” BY OLIVER HILMES, TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN BY JEFFERSON CHASE

c.2016, 2018, Other Press | $25.95 | 320 pages

You are not alone.

While you may be the only person in the room, you are one of many. Every word you've written was written before. Every place you've visited has been seen by other eyes. The things you experience have been done elsewhere. You're not alone: in “Berlin 1936” by Oliver Hilmes, an entire city rushes to an end.

On the first day of the 1936 Berlin Olympics, composer Richard Strauss is impatient. He hates sports and he hates the tax that's been enacted for this sporting event. For the hymn he writes on behalf of it, he demands 10,000 sporting event. For the hymn he writes on behalf of it, he demands 10,000 reichsmarks, and it rankles him that he ends up taking less.

Tom Wolfe has been to Berlin many times, and he couldn't pass up a chance to see the Olympics there. Berlin is vibrant, friendly, and Berliners love the American novelist. He loves them... until a society matron whispers secrets in his ear.

On the second day of the Olympics, Toni Kellner is found dead in her apartment. She was not a social woman – in fact, she was not a woman at all, and Nazi-enforced edicts made her afraid to seek help for her bad heart. Berlin used to have a thriving gay community, but the Third Reich is über-aware of gay men and people like Toni now.

Joseph Goebbels can't stop thinking about the trouble his wife put him in. Not only did she have an affair with a swindler some years ago, but something else recently came to light: the Nazi Minister of Propaganda's wife was the child of a Jewish man.

Jesse Owens won gold. And again. And again. And again.

By the eighth day of the Olympics in Berlin, the city's Roma and Sinti populations are taken from their apartments and moved to a sliver of land near a sanitation field. Most of them will die in concentration camps similar to the one being built just forty minutes away by local train.

And by the end of the Olympics, Hitler "is already determined to go to war."

It may seem trite to say that "Berlin 1936" reads like a novel, but it does. It's nonfiction that reads like a horror novel, with a swirl of unaware and innocent victims, ruthless killers, and a stunning, invisible stream of ice just beneath its surface.

The compelling thing about that is that it's not one large tale of the Nazis and the Games; instead, it's as if author Oliver Hilmes starts with major historical figures and adds little Advent-calendar windows with real people inside: here's the Roma child, snatched from her bed; there's the terrified, ailing transvestite; here's the American woman who kissed Hitler; there's the Romanian Jew who owns a thriving nightclub; all in the middle of an international story that readers know is only the beginning...

How could you resist?

Don't even try. Instead, just take "Berlin 1936" to a corner and don't count on coming out for a good, long time. Start this book, and you'll want to just be left alone.

MY BIG GAY LIFE

Brad Loekle

DON'T LET ME SEE YOUR PEACOCK

Recently a peacock named Dexter made headlines when his owner decided to try and board a United airlines flight under the terms that Dexter was her “Emotional Support animal”. Because, why not? If a dumpster fire can be elected president, why shouldn't we just turn the red-eye flight into a moronic menagerie of white privilege and bird flu?

I'll admit that I am bias. I've written before about my distrust of almost all birds. I think they all look and act like coked-up dinosaurs and I need to keep them where I can see them. And see them only from a great distance. I'm also not the biggest fan of the idea of “emotional support” animals on planes. On the ground, go for it! In your home, at work, in your car, at the park... live your best life! But at 30,000 feet, in a pressurized environment, strapped to a metal carcass that is filled with jet fuel... that's where we have a problem. And by we, I mean me and the 100's of other people on board. Just last year someone brought a 60-pound “comfort” dog on a flight and it ended up freaking out on another passenger's face, leaving him with 28 stitches IN HIS FACE. Mmmmm, comforting, isn't it?

Real service animals (which are highly trained to help the physically disabled) are not on the table of my ire. It's the “comfort” peacocks, cujos, sugar gliders, pythons, spiders, and crocodiles I take issue with. By the way, only one of the animals I just listed there has not been registered as a comfort animal before. Which means someone doesn't feel okay without a fucking tarantula on their head when they go out in public. Who wants to have that gem sitting next to you in the middle seat?!

There's also the very real problem of what happens when someone says they feel threatened being on a plane with comforting Dexter? I mean, I'm not allowed to put my personal item AND my carry-on in the over head compartment out of respect for other people's space on a plane but you're going to bring on a comfort animal whose tail is longer than Robert Mueller's investigation?! Also... can't we make it a rule that no one's allowed to have a carry-on that has actual talons?

And to make things worse, Dexter is also an Art peacock. Meaning his owner does "art" photography with the bird in an assortment of clichéd and exhausting motifs. Believe me, I went to an arts conservatory for college and plenty of people like Dexter's owner needed a Dexter because no one else wanted to deal with their bullshit. On Dexter's Instagram (because that's a thing) there is one photo of Dexter and his owner with the owner's parents. And the parents' facial expressions of forced neutrality and quiet regret really say it all.

Where does this all end? For instance, I'm not that comfortable traveling without a kilo of cocaine and my sub-puppy, Rick. Am I allowed to register them as "comfort" necessities? Because if Delta will also me to get away with that then I take back everything I've said in this article.

Brad Loekle was a semi-finalist on NBC's "Last Comic Standing". He can be seen every week on TruTV's "World's Dumbest", has written for Joan Rivers on E! "Fashion Police" & tours internationally. His book, "My Big Gay Life" is available on Amazon and at www.bradloekle.com

MAN ABOUT TOWN

I In Key West, it's quite common to run into a celebrity. There are some that come here on a regular basis like Jimmy Buffett and Kenny Chesney. There are a few that visit less often but still make an appearance once in a while such as Hulk Hogan, Christian Slater, Khloe Kardashian, Celia Weston, Paula Deen, and you probably heard about Nick Carter and his famous trip to see the inside of a police cruiser as well as a little visit to our county jail.

With all of this celebrity going on, I'm sure you want to have your own celebrity sighting. Well, I can't tell you exactly where and when that will happen, but I do have some suggestions where you can find some people that like to think they are celebrities, and this belief gets higher as the alcohol intake goes up, and that would be at karaoke!

Karaoke is actually from a Japanese word that I could never get correct here, but translates to mean Empty Orchestra.

Karaoke dates back to the 1970s with crude recordings but didn't really take off until the 90s when technology caught up.

Today, computers can store thousands and thousands of songs so the selection is incredible not to mention, with modern sound systems and lighting, you can feel like a real star on stage.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Here are a few places where you can listen to people trying to be a celebrity, just wanting to sing, or just intoxicated and want to be on stage. Whatever the reason, it's always a good time.

STAY SAFE RIDE SMART

A bicycle is a great way to get around, but stay safe by following the rules of the road.

- A bicycle is like any other vehicle, so you must follow the rules of the road.
 - Bicycles must follow all traffic controls such as signs and signals.
 - Bicycles cannot travel the wrong way down a one way street.
 - Bicycles must be ridden on the right hand side of a two way street.
 - You must signal all turns with hand signals.
 - Headsets cannot be worn while cycling.
 - Riding a bike while under the influence can get you a DUI in Florida.
- Lights are required between sunset and sunrise
 - A white light is required in front and a red light in the rear.
- Riding on the sidewalk or crosswalk is permitted but with these provisions
 - Pedestrians have the right of way. Yield to pedestrians.
 - When passing pedestrians, you must signal your intent before doing so.
- Anyone under the age of 16 must wear a helmet.

Here are a few additional tips that you may find helpful.

- Lock up your bike at all times. If not, you'll probably be walking home.
 - Pass the lock through the frame and the front tire.
 - Be careful not to lock your bike to an adjoining bike by accident.
 - If you lock your bike to private property, it may be impounded.
- When approaching occupied cars, be ready to react if the door opens.

Enjoy your time seeing the best of Key West!

Dear Nana,

I've put on a bunch of weight since the election of that dirty Cheetos-faced maggot. But now I'm ready to take the weight off. Do you have any advice? The faster the better since beach season is coming!

Oh Darling, who hasn't put on a few pounds in the last year? Whether you're jager-boming your way through this administration or simply eating Stove Top stuffing directly out of the box like depression-based Chex Mix, we've all been there. Hell, most of us are still there! After all these years I have picked up a few tricks in the battle of the bulge and I'm more than happy to share them. First idea: fuck the fat away. That's right, chickadee; you can burn off a lot of calories doing the old horizontal mambo. The sweatier and more intense, the more you burn off! Think of it like Hot Yoga but this is more of a Hot "Ohhhh Gawd!"

The other thing I can't recommend enough is tapeworms. We used them all the time back in my day. Granted, they were a lot easier to come by back then but if you're truly committed to weight loss I'm sure you can find someone in an Asian super market who has access to them. Of course, it might also kill you but, hey, no one ever said beauty doesn't come at a price. And if you can't come across one of those little devils's I hear all the kids are getting giardia these days from rimming. Now, in my day, the only thing we did was rim the lid onto the Tupperware. But you kids will rebrand anything nowadays. So go nose deep into a total stranger's hairy starfish and see if that helps you lose that weight. And if ass eating isn't your thing might I suggest swimming in a stagnant pond? I'm sure that will give you some sort of catch of the day.

Dear Nana,

I just found out a girl I work with is a "Flat Earther". Which, after some googling and some very weird conversations with her at work, I've learned is a new movement of people who think the Earth is actually flat. That the whole "globe" idea is a conspiracy. Do you have any tips on how I can continue to be nice to her at work without getting into a huge argument? Because I really want to...

Um. No. I actually don't have any advice. Because I think you should definitely stop talking to her and make it clear you think she's crazier than a Shithouse rat. I mean, when I was a girl (back before the seas parted) we still didn't believe that sort of malarkey, so there is no excuse for a young person to still be on that bullshit bandwagon. I'd start wearing a surgical mask when you're around her and if she asks why, simply say, "I'm scared I'll catch crazy, Linda!" Oh, I've decided to name her Linda. And if her name isn't Linda, start calling her Linda and when she asks why say, "well if you can make up whatever gobbledygook you want about the entire planet then I don't see why I can't just make up your name! That'll learn her!"

DO YOU HAVE PROBLEMS? OF COURSE YOU DO! WHY NOT LET NANA HELP YOU?!

WHORE--SCOPES

AQUARIUS JAN 20 - FEB 18

Were your parents related, siblings maybe?

PISCES FEB 19 - MAR 20

Don't let your mind wander. It's too small to be let out alone.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 19

You used to be arrogant and obnoxious. Now you are just the opposite. You're obnoxious and arrogant.

TAURUS APR 20 - MAY 20

You have a striking face, but exactly how many times were you struck there?

GEMINI MAY 21 - JUN 20

You liked your chin so much, you added a few more.

CANCER JUN 21 - JUL 22

When you were a child your mother wanted to hire someone to take care of you. Luckily for you the mafia wanted too much.

LEO JUL 23 - AUG 22

You are as strong as an ox and almost as intelligent.

VIRGO AUG 23 - SEP 22

Please breathe the other way. You're curling my hair.

LIBRA SEP 23 - OCT 22

Don't waste your money on a mind reader. Go to a palm reader instead. At least we know you have a palm.

SCORPIO OCT 23 - NOV 21

I've seen people like you before, but I had to pay admission!

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 - DEC 21

If I ever need a brain transplant, I'd choose yours because I'd want a brain that had never been used.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

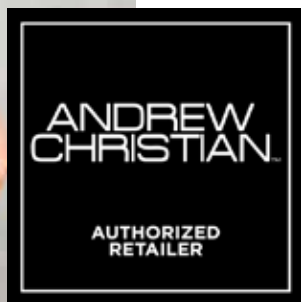

If you were twice as smart as you are, you'd be half as smart as you think you are.
