LEZ

M

My drive across the country on my way from WI to Key West last weekend made me appreciate our island just a little bit more... in other areas they don't wear masks and they certainly don't mask their sneezing children in their carts at the grocery store. If they do have a mask, it's hanging from one ear or tucked loosely under their nose. The numbers in the keys are impressively low. I do attribute that to the controversial mask. I for one enjoy the idea that the mask on my face may be protecting the elderly woman who has no choice but to go get her own groceries or the man with diabetes or the woman with asthma. I like knowing that I'm doing something that may help someone else feel safe. When you change the way you look at things, the things you look at change.

I was never so happy to see the blue-green salt water as this most recent drive home into KW. There is something healing about the water here and there is something unique about the kind of people it attracts. The lesbian community here is particularly special.

Lesbian communities all over the country are disappearing. Some say it's that the women don't spend enough money to be profitable. Some say it's because women are feeling more comfortable and accepted in heteronormative culture. I've even heard it said that we don't need gay bars anymore. I am glad to say that Key West doesn't agree. While we don't have a Women's specific bar in town, we do have a couple of events and places that make up for that. In the past I've talked about Hotdog Church. I could spend a whole column talking about that next month... and I just may. In short, it's a long established gathering of women that visit here or live here full or part time. We go to Aqua's Sidebar every Sunday and the fabulous Laurie T tends bar as we connect, kibitz and often eat hotdogs. Ironic, I know. We also have Womenfest annually where women (mostly lesbian!) take over many of the prominent gay bars, Hotels, B & B's, snorkeling trips and restaurants to celebrate all things Female. Most recently we started a group you can find on Facebook called Key West Lesbians. Yes. We made it easy to find. It's private and you have to answer three basic questions, know the secret head nod and at the very least be a lesbian to be admitted. We meet once a month (in real life - not COVID time) and patron a different bar that knows we're coming for a happy hour and social which often involves light apps. We have a community. I'm so proud of our little island's firm stance on being visible and friendly toward those that are.

Driving back here from across the Midwest I was reminded that the rest of our country has not yet caught up to the One Human Family mentality started by J.T. Thompson. Our island is special, filled with uniquely masked and kind human beings. So, during this crazy time of sickness and fear I find comfort in my island and in my community. We mask up and stay physically distant so that we can socially connect to help each other get through this. This, too, shall end, friends. When it does, Lez Go Out and get some real huggin' in again. Stay safe and healthy and be glad you're here.

As we reopen and tourism comes back to the keys and our opinions of cruise ships, beauty shops, masks, protests and checkpoints differ, I'd like to encourage us all to remember one thing. We are all living here together. It's a small island so be kind to one another. Even that tourist on the bicycle whom Facebook made famous was found. We need to learn to talk to each other. Standing in our corners and yelling gets us nowhere. Our island and our One Human Family motto is an example for the rest of our country. That tourist spent time talking with a person he disagreed with and they came to a mutual understanding. This should be our end goal. All of us. As we all get back out there and each enjoy our island in our favorite ways again, Lez Go Out with kindness in our hearts. Stay healthy and safe my sweet island. I'll see you out there.

"GATECRASHER: HOW I HELPED THE RICH BECOME FAMOUS AND RUIN THE WORLD" BY BEN WIDDICOMBE

c.2020, Simon & Schuster | $27.00 | 305 pages

Have you heard about....?

It's true. You learned it from your best friend's husband's boss's wife at a neighborhood get-together last month and it was confirmed last weekend. You don't like to spread stories but, well, actually you do because who doesn't love a little gossip in their life? Who doesn't crave knowing the skinny about the fat cats? You, nah, you love it, and in "Gatecrasher" by Ben Widdicombe, you'll get an eyeful.

The very idea of living in New York City was exciting.

When Ben Widdicombe and his "handsome and naughty boyfriend Horacio" told friends they were moving from Australia to the Big Apple, most were supportive. One, a conman who insinuated that he was of aristocratic descent, even offered them a flat in The Dakota which, of course, never materialized.

This perhaps should've been a good indication of what was to come for Widdicombe.

A few minor pays-the-bills jobs and several different apartments later, after exploring their new hometown, getting their bearings, and enjoying the thrill of celeb-spotting, Widdicombe and his boyfriend accidentally moved into a building across the street from the founder of Hintmag.com, one of the internet's first online-only fashion mags.

"... by watching and listening," Widdicombe says, "I picked up a few things," which led him and Horatio to suggest a fashion-industry gossip column for the e-zine. They called it "Chic Happens."

That was fun while it lasted, and it pointed Widdicombe in the direction of what became a career in society-watching, storytelling, and dirt-dishing. It also gave him a front row seat in an ultimate cultural shift.

Back in the mid-to-late '90s, many of this country's celebrities were "high-net-worth individuals" in the process of "becoming embraced as a sub-culture," he says. When the new millennium arrived, wealth began to be perceived not as something one was born into or worked hard to get, but as a "bold lifestyle choice" which could be enhanced by outrageous behavior and plenty of publicity. And ultimately, says Widdicombe, this shift in celebrity attitude got us where we are, politically...

Between deliciously dishy tales and cleverly analogous turns of word, "Gatecrasher" is one hundred percent delightful to read. Separate from the fun, it's also informative.

From its first page, there's very little holding-back in this book, which is gleefully wonderful; even when author and New York Times columnist Ben Widdicombe can't name names, he offers precise-enough hints that most readers will know to whom he's referring. In that, we're whispered-to here, but not pandered-to; pleasantly scandalized but not insulted.

Even better, unlike so many memoirs of this ilk, the life of a gossip columnist isn't presented as all diamonds-and-champagne: Widdicombe also writes of the frustrations of the industry, the everything-faux realities, and the let-down of clearly seeing both.

You shake your head at the latest in tabloid TV. You sigh at Washington politics. You scan the tabs at the supermarket check-out line, and so this is a book for you. Indeed, "Gatecrasher" may be the summer's most fun book you've heard about.

MY BIG GAY LIFE

WHAT'S THE RUSH?!

I don't know about you, kids, but I'm in no rush for life to get back to normal. I mean, of course I am in the sense that I'd like to go back to actually making a living, being able to touch other human mammals... preferably men... preferably attractive men... preferably expensive attractive men...

But those things withstanding, I'm not ready for us to all just rush back into "the before times". And not just because we still haven't gotten a handle on this virus (which we haven't) but because I have put on so much goddamn weight during the last 4 months, I can't just leave the house and go back out into the world... I don't have any fucking clothes to put on. I don't even fit in my towels anymore. I had to, first, find out what a "bath sheet" is and then order them under an alias from Amazon. I'm now using "sheets" to dry myself when I shower. That's not a shower that's a home birth. Also showering... I got real out of that habit the last 4 months. I mean, since I just assume I'm never going to be able to enjoy the musk of another man again, I might as well start curating my own, right? Lately I wait as many days as it takes for me to feel like I've got a thin layer of duck butter on my under carriage and then I give myself a good scrubbing! I figure that if not bathing was good enough for the first Queen Elizabeth than it's good enough for me.

And since performing, sex, travel, the beach, pools, blowjobs, dinner parties, and blow job dinner parties have all been off the table, mama's been a-eating! And what's worse is I love to cook! I'm not one of these basic bitches who learned how to make bread in April, through tears, as she watched a commercial about us all being in this "together, Alone". I've been making myself a sheet tray of foccicia as an "afternoon snack" since I was a teenager.

And so I've cooked. I've cooked and I've eaten. The entire month of May I cooked a FULL Thanksgiving dinner every... single... week for me and my roommate. I'm up to three, completely from scratch, pies a week. A WEEK.

And it's not like I've counteracted any of this by doing "home improvements". Oh trust me, just like every other asshole, I filled my Amazon cart with all sorts of organizational tools and DIY items that have barely seen the light of day since they arrived. You know what I did open and use? A five-pound cherry-flavored gummy bear. You heard me. I ate it with a goddamn fork and knife and it took me four days and I'm am not proud of any of these details but it is my truth and it must be spoken.

I have tested the limits of lycra and elastic. And I'm too proud and still too out of work to buy a whole new fat(ter) kid wardrobe. So, I just keep trying to squeeze myself into my old fat kid clothes. I have one pair of shorts that I can get the button closed on. But if I leave it closed for more than 30 minutes I get a blood clot.

And even though cooking is the only cardio I get, that's getting to be a lot. I used to be able to make dinner with just a little dampness on my brow. Today I rolled out some pie dough and was sweating so hard you'd think my pill had just kicked in, in Ibiza. I sweat when I shower now. Don't ask me how, I just do.

So, all I'm asking is maybe more unemployment and legal lockdown until November or December. By then, I'll either have been able to lose the weight or I can get some TV money when I'm cast on the new season of "My 600lb. Life".

Local Bartender Interviews

By Jameson Rabbitt

HOW TO NAVIGATE YOUR NEW BAR EXPERIENCE -WHILE NOT BEING A KAREN.

“Corona Virus, Shit is getting real” in the famous quotes by rapper Cardi B. that predicted the fate of Summer of 2020 has been cancelled and officially done, masked and sanitized. After a tug-o-war of openings and closings of bars and restaurants, we are living in this parallel universe where we fashion masks to the bar, remove them at the table, drink, but don't forget to wear them when you walk to the bathroom!

We are learning how to navigate through this new normal that seems to change daily with new regulations and infractions. On the daily we see new ridiculous modifications to P.P.E. go viral on social media platforms that when you really analyze them, don't sound like such a bad idea. The hard evidence is that as humans we are ready to go back to our daily “normal” routines. We wanna enjoy a beer at our local watering hole, we wanna take shots with a random stranger that we just met at the bathroom. We wanna cry to the bar tender about our ex. Sadly the future of our service industry is wailing in the wind without a concrete answer and has put a lot of your favorites alcohol-therapists at risk.

Risk is a part of bartending, on any given night, a bar staff will deal with a drunken fight, a walk-out without payment, calling a cab for an intoxicated patron, some random girl crying

(usually without shoes); and now, we can add the Karens, and the people who refuse to wear masks to the lists of risks.

Every day is a risk leaving your home to work. Weather people agree on the re-opening of restaurants and bars or not, it's a fact that the rent hasn't stopped. As a tourist destination we have been impacted severely and its been a struggle deciding what the best plan to take is. As the trickling of tourists began at the re-opening of the Keys, we have managed to keep some businesses afloat as we have sadly seen others sink.

The reality of it all is that we are open for business (not bars) - for now, as you enjoy your next masked outing please remember to keep your favorite bartenders and servers at low risk. Wear your mask! Don't be a Karen, wash your hands, enjoy your socially distanced cocktail, and tip generously! Your bartenders are putting themselves at risk so you can have a good time with your quarantine gang.

As the summer continues safer at home, lets continue to support our favorite bartenders and service industry workers as we evolve into our new normal, masked and hoping for a future where we can enjoy our bars and restaurants to their full hot-mess debaucherously potential. A future where you can make out with a random stranger again, a future where you can fall of your bar stool and order another shot. A future where you can dance on the table at your friend's bachelorette party. Until then, stay safe at home. Cheers!

STAY SAFE RIDE SMART

A bicycle is a great way to get around, but stay safe by following the rules of the road.

- A bicycle is like any other vehicle, so you must follow the rules of the road.
  - Bicycles must follow all traffic controls such as signs and signals.
  - Bicycles cannot travel the wrong way down a one way street.
  - Bicycles must be ridden on the right hand side of a two way street.
  - You must signal all turns with hand signals.
  - Headsets cannot be worn while cycling.
  - Riding a bike while under the influence can get you a DUI in Florida.
- Lights are required between sunset and sunrise
  - A white light is required in front and a red light in the rear.
- Riding on the sidewalk or crosswalk is permitted but with these provisions
  - Pedestrians have the right of way. Yield to pedestrians.
  - When passing pedestrians, you must signal your intent before doing so.
- Anyone under the age of 16 must wear a helmet.

Here are a few additional tips that you may find helpful.

- Lock up your bike at all times. If not, you'll probably be walking home.
  - Pass the lock through the frame and the front tire.
  - Be careful not to lock your bike to an adjoining bike by accident.
  - If you lock your bike to private property, it may be impounded.
- When approaching occupied cars, be ready to react if the door opens.

Enjoy your time seeing the best of Key West!

ASK NANA

E-mail your questions to
nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

I've become completely bored with masturbating lately. I'm trying to be really good about Covid so I haven't had sex with anyone other than myself in 4 months. That's probably a record for me, as an adult. I've seen you answer naughty questions before so I'm wondering if you have any ideas on how to spice up making love alone. Thanks!

You say that 4 months is probably a record for you "as an adult"... just out of curiosity, how much sex were you having as a kid?! If you were raised Catholic, I'll assume a decent amount. Anyhoo, yes, I have been known to answer, what you call, a naughty question. But frankly I don't see anything naughty about self-loving yourself at all! It's the most natural thing in the world. I mean, truly, next time you go to the zoo take a look at how much the chimps like doing it!

There's not a whole lot you can do from a DIY point of view to spice up masturbation. Especially when you've done it 20,000 times already. I mean, I'm assuming you've already tried the basics of "reverse cowboy'ing" your non-dominant hand, edging, poppers, etc.

So, I think it's time we brought in the full cast of Toy Story! That's right, get yourself online and start building your very own pleasure chest. Fleshlights, penis pumps, vibrating cock rings, and an assortment of anal probes. Even if you're the biggest top in the world (which you're not... trust me) every man deserves a prostate massage from time to time. Explore! Play! Look for ones that are dishwasher safe for easy clean up!

Dear Nana,

All I see online is all my friends getting into baking. They're baking bread left and right. And mostly sourdough for some reason. Why do you think this pandemic turned everyone into a baker? And why sourdough? Do you bake? Is it therapeutic? Should I try it? Or should I just order take out?

You're not alone, my little muffin top! Suddenly all my neighbors are leaving loaves of bread for me as gift. At first, I thought it was sweet, now I'm ten pounds heavier and my dress size is rising just about as fast as their dough is. I honestly don't know why everyone started making bread, in particular. I don't remember the whole nation making Bundt cakes after Pearl Harbor or there being a scone craze on 9/12. I've always found cooking to be a nice hobby. And since baking is that sort of thing most of us only do at holidays, it might be a sort of pavlovian way of making yourself feel better. Though the holidays usually stress me out more than put me at ease. If anything, you'd think people would be setting up home distilleries or hydroponic weed supplies in their spare room. But I guess they relax their way and I relax mine.

And no, I've never baked bread. I'm an old bitty whose never once felt the need to punch a ball of dough to prove something. If I feel like I need to punch something repeatedly, as therapy, I've always just punched a stupid person. To each their own!

WHORE--SCOPES

AQUARIUS JAN 20 - FEB 18

Now with mask requirements, people actually find you attractive.

PISCES FEB 19 - MAR 20

Not bathing is not the best way to keep people 6 feet away from you.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 19

You've been training for this your whole life. No one wants to be near you.

TAURUS APR 20 - MAY 20

So you're telling people it's just a little extra Covid weight. What was your excuse in 2019?

GEMINI MAY 21 - JUN 20

Clearly this has been a rough few months. You have Cheeto dust all over your Tiger King shirt.

CANCER JUN 21 - JUL 22

So you called the gym asking for a rebate for the last few weeks you haven't been able to go. Are you also going to ask for the last 2 years you haven't gone as well?

LEO JUL 23 - AUG 22

Congratulations, you hit the weight limit on your scale.

VIRGO AUG 23 - SEP 22

You're worried about running out of hand sanitizer and last night you had your tongue, well, let's just say in a very unhygienic place.

LIBRA SEP 23 - OCT 22

With enhanced unemployment, you actually have an income! It's about time!

SCORPIO OCT 23 - NOV 21

No hun, you can't use your EBT card at Sonic.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 - DEC 21

People around you actually hope they get Covid so they lose their sense of smell.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

At your age and at your weight, you better stay inside for the rest of the year.

Fairy tales do come true.
Well.....
