Brief Summary of Patient Information about GENVOYA

GENVOYA (jen-VOY-uh) (elvitegravir, cobicistat, emtricitabine, and tenofovir alafenamide) tablets

Important: Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that should not be taken with GENVOYA.

There may be new information about GENVOYA. This information is only a summary and does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider about your medical condition or treatment.

What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?

GENVOYA can cause serious side effects, including:

- Build-up of lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis). Lactic acidosis may happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Lactic acidosis is a serious medical emergency that can lead to death. Lactic acidosis can be hard to identify early, because the symptoms could seem like symptoms of other health problems. Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms, which could be signs of lactic acidosis:

- feel very weak or tired
- have unusual (not normal) muscle pain
- have trouble breathing
- have stomach pain with nausea or vomiting
- feel cold, especially in your arms and legs
- feel dizzy or lightheaded
- have a fast or irregular heartbeat

- Severe liver problems. Severe liver problems may happen in people who take GENVOYA. In some cases, these liver problems can lead to death. Your liver may become large and you may develop fat in your liver.

Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms of liver problems:

- your skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow (jaundice)
- dark “tea-colored” urine
- light-colored bowel movements (stools)
- loss of appetite for several days or longer
- nausea
- stomach pain

- You may be more likely to get lactic acidosis or severe liver problems if you are female, very overweight (obese), or have been taking GENVOYA for a long time.
- Worsening of Hepatitis B infection. GENVOYA is not for use to treat chronic hepatitis B virus (HBV). If you have HBV infection and take GENVOYA, your HBV may get worse (flare-up) if you stop taking GENVOYA. A “flare-up” is when your HBV infection suddenly returns in a worse way than before.
 - Do not run out of GENVOYA. Refill your prescription or talk to your healthcare provider before your GENVOYA is all gone.
 - Do not stop taking GENVOYA without first talking to your healthcare provider.
 - If you stop taking GENVOYA, your healthcare provider will need to check your health often and do blood tests regularly for several months to check your HBV infection. Tell your healthcare provider about any new or unusual symptoms you may have after you stop taking GENVOYA.

What is GENVOYA?

GENVOYA is a prescription medicine that is used without other HIV-1 medicines to treat HIV-1 in people 12 years of age and older:

- who have not received HIV-1 medicines in the past or
- to replace their current HIV-1 medicines in people who have been on the same HIV-1 medicines for at least 6 months, have an amount of HIV-1 in their blood (“viral load”) that is less than 50 copies/mL, and have never failed past HIV-1 treatment

HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

GENVOYA contains the prescription medicines elvitegravir (VITEKTA®), cobicistat (TYBOST®), emtricitabine (EMTRIVA®) and tenofovir alafenamide.

It is not known if GENVOYA is safe and effective in children under 12 years of age.

When used to treat HIV-1 infection, GENVOYA may:

- Reduce the amount of HIV-1 in your blood. This is called “viral load”.
- Increase the number of CD4+ (T) cells in your blood that help fight off other infections.

Reducing the amount of HIV-1 and increasing the CD4+ (T) cells in your blood may help improve your immune system. This may reduce your risk of death or getting infections that can happen when your immune system is weak (opportunistic infections).

GENVOYA does not cure HIV-1 infection or AIDS.

You must stay on continuous HIV-1 therapy to control HIV-1 infection and decrease HIV-related illnesses.

Avoid doing things that can spread HIV-1 infection to others:

- Do not share or re-use needles or other injection equipment.
- Do not share personal items that can have blood or body fluids on them, like toothbrushes and razor blades.
- Do not have any kind of sex without protection. Always practice safer sex by using a latex or polyurethane condom to lower the chance of sexual contact with semen, vaginal secretions, or blood.

Ask your healthcare provider if you have any questions about how to prevent passing HIV-1 to other people.

Who should not take GENVOYA?

Do not take GENVOYA if you also take a medicine that contains:

- alfuzosin hydrochloride (Uroxatral®)
- carbamazepine (Carbatrol®, Eptol®, Equetro®, Tegretol®, Tegretol-XR®, Teril®)
- cisapride (Propulsid®, Propulsid Quicksolv®)
- ergot-containing medicines, including: dihydroergotamine mesylate (D.H.E. 45®, Migranal®), ergotamine tartrate (Cafergot®, Migergot®, Ergostat®, Medihaler Ergotamine®, Wigraine®, Wigrettes®), and methylergonovine maleate (Ergotrate®, Methergine®)
- lovastatin (Advicor®, Altoprev®, Mevacor®)
- midazolam, when taken by mouth
- phenobarbital (Luminal®)
- phenytoin (Dilantin®, Phenytek®)
- pimozone (Orap®)
- rifampin (Rifadin®, Rifamate®, Rifater®, Rimactane®)
- sildenafil (Revatio®), when used for treating lung problems
- simvastatin (Simcor®, Vytorin®, Zocor®)
- triazolam (Halcion®)
- the herb St. John's wort or a product that contains St. John's wort

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking GENVOYA?

Before taking GENVOYA, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- have liver problems including hepatitis B infection
- have kidney or bone problems

- have any other medical conditions
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if GENVOYA can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking GENVOYA.

Pregnancy registry: there is a pregnancy registry for women who take HIV-1 medicines during pregnancy. The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. Talk with your healthcare provider about how you can take part in this registry.

- are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed if you take GENVOYA.
 - You should not breastfeed if you have HIV-1 because of the risk of passing HIV-1 to your baby.
 - At least one of the medicines in GENVOYA can pass to your baby in your breast milk. It is not known if the other medicines in GENVOYA can pass into your breast milk.
 - Talk with your healthcare provider about the best way to feed your baby.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements. Other medicines may affect how GENVOYA works.

Some medicines may interact with GENVOYA. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

- You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for a list of medicines that interact with GENVOYA.
- Do not start a new medicine without telling your healthcare provider. Your healthcare provider can tell you if it is safe to take GENVOYA with other medicines.

How should I take GENVOYA?

- Take GENVOYA exactly as your healthcare provider tells you to take it. GENVOYA is taken by itself (not with other HIV-1 medicines) to treat HIV-1 infection.
- GENVOYA is usually taken 1 time each day.
- Take GENVOYA with food.
- If you need to take a medicine for indigestion (antacid) that contains aluminum and magnesium hydroxide or calcium carbonate during treatment with GENVOYA, take it at least 2 hours before or after you take GENVOYA.

Important: Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that should not be taken with GENVOYA.

How should I take GENVOYA? (continued)

- Do not change your dose or stop taking GENVOYA without first talking with your healthcare provider. Stay under a healthcare provider's care when taking GENVOYA.
- Do not miss a dose of GENVOYA.
- If you take too much GENVOYA, call your healthcare provider or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away.
- When your GENVOYA supply starts to run low, get more from your healthcare provider or pharmacy. This is very important because the amount of virus in your blood may increase if the medicine is stopped for even a short time. The virus may develop resistance to GENVOYA and become harder to treat.

What are the possible side effects of GENVOYA?

GENVOYA may cause serious side effects, including:

- See "What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?"
- Changes in body fat can happen in people who take HIV-1 medicine. These changes may include increased amount of fat in the upper back and neck ("buffalo hump"), breast, and around the middle of your body (trunk). Loss of fat from the legs, arms and face may also happen. The exact cause and long-term health effects of these conditions are not known.
- Changes in your immune system (Immune Reconstitution Syndrome) can happen when you start taking HIV-1 medicines. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections that have been hidden in your body for a long time. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you start having any new symptoms after starting your HIV-1 medicine.
- New or worse kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys before you start and while you are taking GENVOYA. Your healthcare provider may tell you to stop taking GENVOYA if you develop new or worse kidney problems.
- Bone problems can happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Bone problems may include bone pain, softening or thinning (which may lead to fractures). Your healthcare provider may need to do tests to check your bones.

Genvoja™

elvitegravir 150mg/cobicistat 150mg/emtricitabine
200mg/tenofovir alafenamide 10mg tablets

The most common side effect of GENVOYA is nausea.

Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away.

- These are not all the possible side effects of GENVOYA. For more information, ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist.
- Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

General information about the safe and effective use of GENVOYA.

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes other than those listed in a Patient Information leaflet. Do not use GENVOYA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give GENVOYA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Brief Summary summarizes the most important information about GENVOYA. If you would like more information, talk with your healthcare provider. You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for information about GENVOYA that is written for health professionals.

For more information, call 1-800-445-3235 or go to www.GENVOYA.com.

Keep GENVOYA and all medicines out of reach of children.

JURY OF MY QUEERS

by: Brad Loekle

So, I recently had jury duty. I'm sure I'll sound like a total civics nerd but I actually looked forward to it. This was partially due to the fact that I was, at the time, also binge watching the Netflix opus of a documentary "Making a Murderer". If you haven't seen it, I won't give out any spoilers but I will say that it makes it clear just how bad things have gotten in the justice system, so far as stupidity and corruption. Not to mention the fact it confirms what I'm sure we all knew in the back of our heads, which is: Wisconsin is such a shithole you wouldn't even want to be arrested there. Oh, also, the state prosecutor has the creepiest child molester hands I've ever seen on a grown man. Watch it, I guarantee that you'll agree.

But, due to my newfound passion for justice via Netflix, I was actually hoping to get chosen for a jury. I've also never, in all the jury duties I've been called in for, been picked to be on one. So, for me, the judicial system was starting to feel a lot like gym class: Brad being picked last, if at all. I knew it wasn't anything personal. Actually, I'm almost sure that it was professional; as in no lawyer on either side of a case really wants a comedian on their jury. Not to mention the fact that in almost every instance of me being questioned in a room full of potential jurors, the lawyer will ask me about my listing of "comedian" as profession, which will spark someone in the room to yell, "Aw! I knew it! You're that gay guy from that TruTV show with fuckin' Tonya Harding!!!" This immediately disqualifies me for service. Not just because I've worked with "fuckin' Tonya Harding", though truly that should be enough to disqualify anyone from anything; but also because the lawyers then believe I'll have an unfair ability to sway some people on my jury since they might know and like me from TV.

Well, now that I live in Hollywood, I guess I'm not considered nearly famous enough to sway anything. Which is absolutely true. So not only did I get calling in, I got picked finally! It was a very small case, the nature of which I can't discuss. But I can tell you it wasn't anything grand or titillating like murder. It wasn't even as interesting as a rerun of Murder, She Wrote! And the whole thing only took up one afternoon. But here's what fascinated me more than the case itself. It was the fact that, even in a small case like this, there was no chance on earth that this defendant got a jury of his peers. Mostly because this jury was made up of people who could only, for the most part, be considered the peers of an adult who read at a 6th grade level. And I'm really being generous and polite with that description. First of all, one of the women on our jury... and the one chosen to be our "leader" by the sheer fact she was "juror #1" only casually spoke English and couldn't write English at all. I certainly don't mind that in day-to-day life... but when we're dealing with Lady Justice who is already blindfolded, it would probably help if she could understand what the Jury is saying. Then let's also discuss the fact that one juror, while we were deliberating, kept mentioning how they hated that pink dress shirt the defendant was wearing. And not just mentioning it, adding it to the list of things they thought proved he was guilty?! I guess in the long list of things the judge had explained to us about our job as a jury, he negated to mention that this wasn't also the season finale of Project Runway!!

I sat in awe of these slack-jawed people who were deciding a case that had a fairly large monetary judgment riding on it. And all I could think is, if I ever get arrested for a crime, there is not a chance in hell that I would get a jury of my peers. I'm on a jury with people who couldn't read the menu options they gave us when they wanted to send in lunch... and I was reading Plato's Republic for fun when I was 12. "Oh my god", I thought, "If I'm ever arrested for a crime I didn't commit, I'd get the death penalty just for the sheer fact I live in a country where most people can't even identify all 50 states on a map!"

So let this be a warning to you. Lady Justice might be "blind", but I can assure you the jury you get will be partially deaf and totally dumb. Oh, and clearly don't wear a pink dress shirt if you don't want to get the chair!

Brad Loekle was a semi-finalist on NBC's "Last Comic Standing". He can be seen every week on TruTV's "World's Dumbest", has written for Joan Rivers on E! "Fashion Police" & tours extensively on Atlantis Events & RSVP cruises. His Logo comedy special premiered in late January, check local listings.

ZACHARY MOSES : MAN ABOUT TOWN

It's February. What the hell? I swear to god I just wrote January's article! What happened to January? This explains the dirty looks from the security guards at my condo. Time to take down the Christmas decorations. I haven't watered the tree since December 12th and it looks like crap.

Man...What have I been doing for the last Month? It freaking flew by, I can barely remember it. Let's take it from the top:

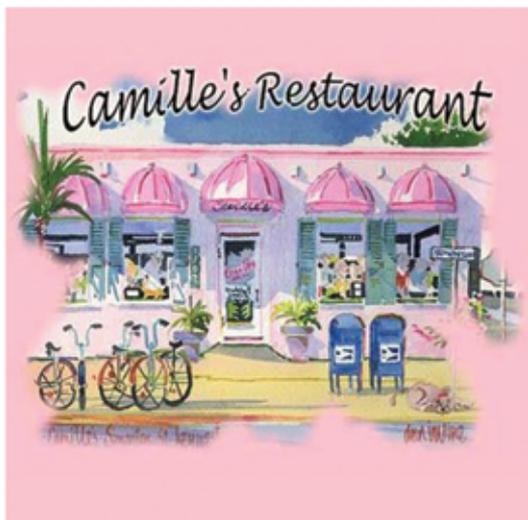

Our staff rang in the New Year at The Saint Hotel (417 Eaton St). They have an AWESOME bar! I like to visit this super classy spot after watching films across the street at the Tropic Cinema- great Movies. The film selections are far more interesting than mainstream movie theaters.

I've discovered that Kojin, an Asian style noodle shop (502 Southard St) and Roostica (5620 MacDonald Ave, Stock Island) serve gluten-free (GF) food. Yahooo! I've eaten at these two restaurants about 50 times since. I'm sure there are more GF options in town but I've been perfectly Zen in my pizza-noodle lifestyle.

I joined a beautiful memorial for a good friend's daughter who passed away a year ago. It was a heart wrenching experience. We threw 365 roses off the Aids Memorial Pier. Watching the petals float away was absolutely beautiful.

My two buddies have been dragging me to Island Gym (1119 White St) each morning. I love the gym but hate waking up at 6:30 am. The guys think I'm just being a baby. They don't realize that this "Man About Town" is frequently still OUT at four in the morning! Lately, it's not uncommon for me to lay down for bench presses and wake up to, "ahem, sir? Are you going to be there any longer?"

I went to Brunch at Camille's with a few friends and told them about virtual reality porn. Now, I fear I've created several monsters... Have you tried it? Be careful, you may never go back to reality. You can buy a pair of goggles ($100) from Oculus which are attachable to the newest versions of the Samsung Galaxy cell phones. It's awesome! I would tell you more but Samsung hasn't given me millions of sponsorship dollars. You'll just have to trust me and try them for yourself.

One of my best friends came to town mid-January. We went to the Porch, then to the Other Side Bar (both located 429 Caroline St.) and managed to get hammered- shocker. I considered driving home; then I remembered that would make me a total asshole. So we wandered over to the dock at Higgs Beach Instead. It was great fun catching up with my friend but much less fun puking my guts up ten minutes later. I considered calling a cab but my vision was so blurry that I drunk dialed my mom instead!

So that's what happened this month. January went by quickly because I was having so much fun. LOL

“The Wedding Heard ‘Round the World: America’s First Gay Marriage”

c.2016, University of Minnesota Press $22.95 200 pages

THE WEDDING

HEARD 'ROUND

THE WORLD

MICHAEL MCCONNELL

WITH

JACK BAKER

AS TOLD TO GAIL LANGER KARWOSKI

There's always been a picket fence in your future.

You could just picture it: charming spouse, two-point-five kids, minivan, Cape Cod with manicured lawn, birthday parties on the patio, all surrounded by that picket fence. It was a perfect dream of a blissful life. And, as in “The Wedding Heard ‘Round the World” by Michael McConnell with Jack Baker, as told to Gail Langer Karwoski, making history would be a nice bonus.

As a child playing with neighborhood girls, Michael

McConnell remembers wanting the same thing they wanted: to grow up and marry a handsome man. Their crushes were his crushes, too, but in the 1950s, that kind of thing wasn't discussed.

By the time he entered college at the University of Oklahoma in the mid-'60s, however, McConnell had come out to his family and was comfortable with his sexuality. He met other gay men and enjoyed an active social life on campus and then, on October 29, 1966, he met Jack Baker.

For the first minutes of their get-to-know-you, McConnell thought Baker was much older, or perhaps straight. Baker's demeanor was businesslike, almost military in mien; McConnell had recently had his heart broken, and was guarded. Still, by the end of the evening, they were lovers; soon after, they were a couple.

By the early '70s, though their relationship had to be kept quieter, McConnell and Baker were "out" enough to want to make real change. Baker, a Minneapolis law student, filed suit against the U.S. Military over an unfair downgrade in his discharge status. After following Baker north, McConnell fought job discrimination. And then there was the wedding Baker promised McConnell on Baker's twenty-fifth birthday. It would happen – they just had to figure out how.

That would take some time, but Baker was on it. His legal training tickled his methodical mind, until he discovered two loopholes the state of Minnesota hadn't closed. One led to the next, and both led to their history-making wedding in 1971.

That, of course, isn't the end of the story. Authors Michael McConnell and Jack Baker continued their activism but their nuptials, the first in America for same-sex celebrants, are the real focus in "The Wedding Heard 'Round the World."

And that's a good thing, too, because the love story in this book is what makes it so readable. McConnell's account (as told to Gail Langer Karwoski) is mostly what's here, and it's the quintessential romance: boy meets boy, boy marries boy, they live Happily (Almost) Ever After.

Conversely, it's the almost that makes this book so important: the battles the authors accepted caused emotional hardship in many ways and that almost caused a break-up. And yet, for the sake of others that came after them, they continued to take on gay rights issues – stories of which are told humbly, yet proudly. Overall, this is a sweet story wrapped inside a righteous fight, told with charm and grace. It's deep, yet lighthearted and definitely worth a look. Start "The Wedding Heard 'Round the World" – and you'll have no defense.

E-mail your questions to nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

This is a little embarrassing but here we go! So, I may have suction cupped a dildo to my bedroom wall, right behind my bed for some fun I was having the other night. Well, it left a perfect, shiny suction cup and "ball" outline on the wall that won't wash off. I assume it's from some of the lube, which was silicone based. I don't mind it there, but my parent's are coming to stay with me in a month and they'll be taking my bed while I take the pull out couch. I'm really worried that they're going to notice it and ask about it. But on the other hand, I don't really want to paint the whole wall over again. Any ideas on how to get the stain out or how to cover it up creatively?

Okay, first off, this month's question has so many "layers" to peel back; I'm only going to have time to delve into this one question. First of all, dear God?! I'm all for getting your kitty punched however you can... and if you can't love the one you want, love the one you're with... even if it's just yourself! However, I don't see why you couldn't have just meandered into the shower and turned the washable tile wall into your secret lover?? Obviously my hiney-hinesight doesn't really solve your current dilemma, but it's certainly something to think about for your next lonely night. I'm just looking out for you, kiddo. Now, back to the matter at hand on the wall. I'm sure you tried soap and water... but you can also try an actual degreaser. Granted, it's lube and not grease, but it's worth a try. Another excellent homemade degreaser is equal parts white vinegar in hot water. Always use hot water for cleaning up oils and greases as it helps break them down and allows the cleaning solution to grab onto the oils better.

Now, if none of that works, you are a little bit fucked, my dear. Now, if you still have any paint lying around from whenever you painted the wall (if it's a specific color vs. flat white) you might be able to get away with a touchup job and not a full repaint of the wall to make it match. Though, all in all, better to have a slightly off-color patch that you explain away with "oh, I had to patch a hole..." rather than explaining that you were busy filling your hole, which is why your Dad is now sleeping under the phantom image of a ball sack. Whether you just paint over the patch or do the whole wall, remember to USE A PRIMER to first cover the dirty deed and let it dry to make sure the oil hasn't bled through that. Because if you just use regular flat paint over the oil, it will most likely bleed through and then you're just some sort of bottom version of Lady Macbeth: "Out damn lube spot!"

Now, if you don't want to paint it at all, I say, in this case "more" might actually make them question it less. What do I mean? Well, You could lube up the back of your "Selfie Stick" and actually use it to sort of sponge paint the whole wall in a pattern! I'd also alternate the direction of the balls: one down, one up, one down, etc. This will make it all turn from being one oily ball bag to an abstract decorative pattern! TA-DA! From awkward to art! It's a bold move... but so is fucking yourself with drywall. Also, it gives you a HELL of a story when you have people over for parties! Oh, and if you do take this particular path... PLEASE take a picture of the finished remodel and send it to me!

Aquarius

Jan 20 – Feb 18

Looks like you've put on a little winter weight. I assume we're talking about winter 2004?

Pisces

Feb 19 – Mar 20

Happy birthday dear Pisces. Remember to update your age on Grindr like you've forgotten to do for the last 12 years.

Aries

Mar 21 – Apr 19

If you're going to keep bitching about your money problems, put down the $12 martini first.

Taurus

Apr 20 – May 20

With all of the advances in modern plastic surgery, there's no excuse for you to look like this.

Gemini

May 21 – Jun 20

The fact that you come here to get advice says something about what poor judgement you have.

Cancer

Jun 21 – Jul 22

So you got yourself arrested just in the hopes that you would share a cell with a celebrity. How did that work out for you?

Leo

Jul 23 – Aug 22

To help you lose some weight, donate today's meal to the homeless, or a family of eight.

Virgo

Aug 23 – Sep 22

When you invite someone out to brunch, don't be the douche that conveniently forgot his wallet at home!

Libra

Sep 23 – Oct 22

Do you ever have anything good to say? Everything out of your mouth is complaint after complaint. Do us all a favor and stop talking!

Scorpio

Oct 23 – Nov 21

You keep trying to convince everyone you're a top yet the first picture you share with a guy is your well used butthole.

Sagittarius

Nov 22 – Dec 21

It's bad enough that your parents still have to bail you out but thanking your father on Facebook for you having cell service again makes you look like a total loser.

Capricorn

Dec 22 – Jan 19

You have far too much self confidence. With your looks, you should just hide under a rock.
