Brief Summary of Patient Information about GENVOYA

GENVOYA (jen-VOY-uh) (elvitegravir, cobicistat, emtricitabine, and tenofovir alafenamide) tablets

Important: Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that should not be taken with GENVOYA.

There may be new information about GENVOYA. This information is only a summary and does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider about your medical condition or treatment.

What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?

GENVOYA can cause serious side effects, including:

- Build-up of lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis). Lactic acidosis may happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Lactic acidosis is a serious medical emergency that can lead to death. Lactic acidosis can be hard to identify early, because the symptoms could seem like symptoms of other health problems. Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms, which could be signs of lactic acidosis:

- feel very weak or tired
- have unusual (not normal) muscle pain
- have trouble breathing
- have stomach pain with nausea or vomiting
- feel cold, especially in your arms and legs
- feel dizzy or lightheaded
- have a fast or irregular heartbeat

- Severe liver problems. Severe liver problems may happen in people who take GENVOYA. In some cases, these liver problems can lead to death. Your liver may become large and you may develop fat in your liver.

Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms of liver problems:

- your skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow (jaundice)
- dark “tea-colored” urine
- light-colored bowel movements (stools)
- loss of appetite for several days or longer
- nausea
- stomach pain

- You may be more likely to get lactic acidosis or severe liver problems if you are female, very overweight (obese), or have been taking GENVOYA for a long time.
- Worsening of Hepatitis B infection. GENVOYA is not for use to treat chronic hepatitis B virus (HBV). If you have HBV infection and take GENVOYA, your HBV may get worse (flare-up) if you stop taking GENVOYA. A “flare-up” is when your HBV infection suddenly returns in a worse way than before.
 - Do not run out of GENVOYA. Refill your prescription or talk to your healthcare provider before your GENVOYA is all gone.
 - Do not stop taking GENVOYA without first talking to your healthcare provider.
 - If you stop taking GENVOYA, your healthcare provider will need to check your health often and do blood tests regularly for several months to check your HBV infection. Tell your healthcare provider about any new or unusual symptoms you may have after you stop taking GENVOYA.

What is GENVOYA?

GENVOYA is a prescription medicine that is used without other HIV-1 medicines to treat HIV-1 in people 12 years of age and older:

- who have not received HIV-1 medicines in the past or
- to replace their current HIV-1 medicines in people who have been on the same HIV-1 medicines for at least 6 months, have an amount of HIV-1 in their blood (“viral load”) that is less than 50 copies/mL, and have never failed past HIV-1 treatment

HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

GENVOYA contains the prescription medicines elvitegravir (VITEKTA[®]), cobicistat (TYBOST[®]), emtricitabine (EMTRIVA[®]) and tenofovir alafenamide.

It is not known if GENVOYA is safe and effective in children under 12 years of age.

When used to treat HIV-1 infection, GENVOYA may:

- Reduce the amount of HIV-1 in your blood. This is called “viral load”.
- Increase the number of CD4+ (T) cells in your blood that help fight off other infections.

Reducing the amount of HIV-1 and increasing the CD4+ (T) cells in your blood may help improve your immune system. This may reduce your risk of death or getting infections that can happen when your immune system is weak (opportunistic infections).

GENVOYA does not cure HIV-1 infection or AIDS.

You must stay on continuous HIV-1 therapy to control HIV-1 infection and decrease HIV-related illnesses.

Avoid doing things that can spread HIV-1 infection to others:

- Do not share or re-use needles or other injection equipment.
- Do not share personal items that can have blood or body fluids on them, like toothbrushes and razor blades.
- Do not have any kind of sex without protection. Always practice safer sex by using a latex or polyurethane condom to lower the chance of sexual contact with semen, vaginal secretions, or blood.

Ask your healthcare provider if you have any questions about how to prevent passing HIV-1 to other people.

Who should not take GENVOYA?

Do not take GENVOYA if you also take a medicine that contains:

- alfuzosin hydrochloride (Uroxatral®)
- carbamazepine (Carbatrol®, Eptol®, Equetro®, Tegretol®, Tegretol-XR®, Teril®)
- cisapride (Propulsid®, Propulsid Quicksolv®)
- ergot-containing medicines, including: dihydroergotamine mesylate (D.H.E. 45®, Migranal®), ergotamine tartrate (Cafergot®, Migergot®, Ergostat®, Medihaler Ergotamine®, Wigraine®, Wigrettes®), and methylergonovine maleate (Ergotrate®, Methergine®)
- lovastatin (Advicor®, Altoprev®, Mevacor®)
- midazolam, when taken by mouth
- phenobarbital (Luminal®)
- phenytoin (Dilantin®, Phenytek®)
- pimozone (Orap®)
- rifampin (Rifadin®, Rifamate®, Rifater®, Rimactane®)
- sildenafil (Revatio®), when used for treating lung problems
- simvastatin (Simcor®, Vytorin®, Zocor®)
- triazolam (Halcion®)
- the herb St. John's wort or a product that contains St. John's wort

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking GENVOYA?

Before taking GENVOYA, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- have liver problems including hepatitis B infection
- have kidney or bone problems

- have any other medical conditions
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if GENVOYA can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking GENVOYA.

Pregnancy registry: there is a pregnancy registry for women who take HIV-1 medicines during pregnancy. The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. Talk with your healthcare provider about how you can take part in this registry.

- are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed if you take GENVOYA.
 - You should not breastfeed if you have HIV-1 because of the risk of passing HIV-1 to your baby.
 - At least one of the medicines in GENVOYA can pass to your baby in your breast milk. It is not known if the other medicines in GENVOYA can pass into your breast milk.
 - Talk with your healthcare provider about the best way to feed your baby.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements. Other medicines may affect how GENVOYA works.

Some medicines may interact with GENVOYA. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

- You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for a list of medicines that interact with GENVOYA.
- Do not start a new medicine without telling your healthcare provider. Your healthcare provider can tell you if it is safe to take GENVOYA with other medicines.

How should I take GENVOYA?

- Take GENVOYA exactly as your healthcare provider tells you to take it. GENVOYA is taken by itself (not with other HIV-1 medicines) to treat HIV-1 infection.
- GENVOYA is usually taken 1 time each day.
- Take GENVOYA with food.
- If you need to take a medicine for indigestion (antacid) that contains aluminum and magnesium hydroxide or calcium carbonate during treatment with GENVOYA, take it at least 2 hours before or after you take GENVOYA.

Important: Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that should not be taken with GENVOYA.

How should I take GENVOYA? (continued)

- Do not change your dose or stop taking GENVOYA without first talking with your healthcare provider. Stay under a healthcare provider's care when taking GENVOYA.
- Do not miss a dose of GENVOYA.
- If you take too much GENVOYA, call your healthcare provider or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away.
- When your GENVOYA supply starts to run low, get more from your healthcare provider or pharmacy. This is very important because the amount of virus in your blood may increase if the medicine is stopped for even a short time. The virus may develop resistance to GENVOYA and become harder to treat.

What are the possible side effects of GENVOYA?

GENVOYA may cause serious side effects, including:

- See "What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?"
- Changes in body fat can happen in people who take HIV-1 medicine. These changes may include increased amount of fat in the upper back and neck ("buffalo hump"), breast, and around the middle of your body (trunk). Loss of fat from the legs, arms and face may also happen. The exact cause and long-term health effects of these conditions are not known.
- Changes in your immune system (Immune Reconstitution Syndrome) can happen when you start taking HIV-1 medicines. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections that have been hidden in your body for a long time. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you start having any new symptoms after starting your HIV-1 medicine.
- New or worse kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys before you start and while you are taking GENVOYA. Your healthcare provider may tell you to stop taking GENVOYA if you develop new or worse kidney problems.
- Bone problems can happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Bone problems may include bone pain, softening or thinning (which may lead to fractures). Your healthcare provider may need to do tests to check your bones.

Genvoja™

elvitegravir 150mg/cobicistat 150mg/emtricitabine
200mg/tenofovir alafenamide 10mg tablets

The most common side effect of GENVOYA is nausea.

Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away.

- These are not all the possible side effects of GENVOYA. For more information, ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist.
- Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

General information about the safe and effective use of GENVOYA.

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes other than those listed in a Patient Information leaflet. Do not use GENVOYA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give GENVOYA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Brief Summary summarizes the most important information about GENVOYA. If you would like more information, talk with your healthcare provider. You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for information about GENVOYA that is written for health professionals.

For more information, call 1-800-445-3235 or go to www.GENVOYA.com.

Keep GENVOYA and all medicines out of reach of children.

The 80's Made Me Gay!

by: Brad Loekle

One of my best friends has an adorable little boy and for his birthday recently I decided to buy him some DVD's of cartoons from my own youth. He has always loved all the older animated movies I have given him that hearken back to my own childhood, so I figured I would keep the trend going. I found that they had released the first few seasons of my all time favorite childhood cartoon: HE-MAN! on DVD. As a boy I watched that show religiously; I had every action figure and knew every detail of that world and its stories. I couldn't wait to show it to the kid and see if he liked it.

But as we sat on the floor together, watching episode after episode, I realized... He-Man was a huge homo! Like the hugest. Oh my God... did 80's kid's TV made me gay!? How had no one ever noticed that this entire cartoon was basically a gay propaganda piece? Here you have a nervous, shy, un-athletic prince, Adam (who wears pastels), and his giant house cat, Cringer. Prince Adam's best friend is a middle aged, single, drama queen "The Sorceress" who lives in a very tacky, ornate house and is always in need of Adam's emotional and physical support (If that isn't every chubby fag hag you've ever known, I don't know what is?!). Then, Adam has this big "secret" that he has to keep from everyone he knows... like his parents... The secret is that, when he's out of the house he turns into a giant muscle queen who wears nothing but a fur loin cloth (how '70's) and rides around on the back of his pet cat, using a saddle! The only thing gayer than riding on the back of giant kitty cat is using a saddle to do it!!!

Now, other than the fruit fly Sorceress, the only other person who knows his "secret" is his older mentor and confidant, "Man at Arms". Who, coincidentally, is a buff guy in his 40's who sports a handle bar mustache and likes to work on cars.... Are you friggin' kidding me?!?!?!?!? Oh, and to top it off, He-Man's biggest enemy is Skeletor: another muscle bound queen, but with a busted face, who lives in a house with a big ornate fountain in the front yard and hangs out with evil henchmen like Evil-Lyn: another fruit fly, but with a chip on her shoulder... and Beast Man: an aggressive muscle bear with body image issues.

I don't know how, in the mid 80's anyone got this show and it's storylines past the sensors! I mean 20 years later that poor purple teletubby carried a man-purse and had a triangle on his head and people just about lynched him! But this muscle bound Mary was running around in children's minds for two decades before that!

Then there was the candy of my childhood. Where my father's generation had candy cigarettes, mine had candy jewelry. Ring pops, candy necklaces, candy bracelets... we just could keep kids out of dressing like Elisabeth Taylor... and then eating like Elisabeth Taylor too! Not to mention we had a lot of what I call "blow job candy". Push pops: where you stuck your finger in the "bottom" of the candy to make the tip come out so you could suck it. I mean, I'll give whatever sick Willy Wonka created that one because it was an excellent lesson in prostate massaging as a path to happiness. And then there was another candy called "Liquid Lollipop". It was just what it sounded like: a tube of syrupy sweet candy that oozed out of the top of the tube. Except the head of the tube looked A LOT like the head of a penis. And then you'd run your hands up and down the tube squeezing it harder and harder and this brightly colored "load" would squirt out of the head of the tube. Basically, when I was a kid, the candy isle was basically an episode of "To Catch a Predator".

So I want to thank all the cartoon & candy makers of the 80's and early 90's for quietly sending coded gay messages to all the little gaybies out there. We're a much happier, dare I say gayer, group of men because of you.

Brad Loekle was a semi-finalist on NBC's "Last Comic Standing". He was just featured in Bianca Del Rio's Comedy Cabaret, which was filmed live at Aspen Gay Ski Week for Logo. He can be seen every week on TruTV's "World's Dumbest", has written for Joan Rivers on E! "Fashion Police" & tours extensively on Atlantis Events & RSVP cruises.

KALEB SMITH: MAN ABOUT TOWN

Friendship. How do you write about such a big topic, in 500 words or less?

When I moved to Key West almost four years ago, I left my whole previous life behind. I'm sure this is a familiar story for a lot of new locals. The promise of new experiences and the hope of making a few friends was my driving force.

I experienced the usual annoyance every newbie to the island experiences, bouncing around from room to room. We locals know how hard it is to find a place to live here. The majority of our housing is rented out for tourism, so finding a good place takes a lot of time. I was grateful when I finally settled into the fantastic home I live in now. Beautiful gardens, great porches, modern appliances and laundry! How did I get this amazing place? Friends. Those first few friendships I made fostered into my new and wonderful life here. It was those friends who put in the good word for me and I've been here ever since.

I'd been visiting Key West for a while when I decided to join the populous. Thanks to the friends I'd made while visiting, I started a job the first day I arrived. This little bit of help from my friends, the real Key West locals afforded me the opportunity to get out of the credit card debt that had been plaguing me for the past ten years in Los Angeles. I never would have gotten the opportunities I've had here without friends that believed in me.

I'm writing this article on Valentine's Day. Today I find myself in a loving relationship, I'm about to get married, and I'm working towards my dreams. I would like to say, thank you, to all the friends I've made along the way. You have made everything I love in life possible.

If you are in Key West on vacation, please don't forget that the locals of this town aren't here just to entertain you or serve you cocktails and shrimp. If you get to know them, they will make your experience in our town one of a kind. Those of you that live here, don't forget to treasure each person who's helped you make a life here. God knows it isn't easy.

Set a game night with your friends or visitors to town. Take in a movie at the Tropic Cinema. Cook dinner. See a play or help a friend with a home project. These activities foster our friendships and help show that we are truly one human family. Fundraisers, parties, luncheons, etc. are all wonderful ways to support the community. However, please don't forget about the little things in your everyday. You never know when a phone call to check in with a friend might be the exact thing that someone needed. Thank you Key West and all of you that make this little island so special.

"The Battle for Room 314" by Ed Boland

THE BATTLE FOR ROOM 314

My Year of HOPE and DESPAIR in a
NEW YORK CITY HIGH SCHOOL

"Searing, funny, audacious, and sad... glazes with insight and urgency."

—ANDREW SOLOMON,

National Book Award-winning author of Fur from the Tree

Ed Boland

What was the name of your favorite teacher?

Even after all these years, you still remember the smell of chalk, the sound of her reading aloud, the way he pulled ideas from your head or music from your fingers. That teacher changed your life, and "The Battle for Room 314" by Ed Boland, you'll get a view of today's classroom – one you'll barely recognize.

What was a nice, educated gay man doing in a snarling pit of teenage attitude?

With sweaty palms and a worthless planner, newly-minted teacher Ed Boland wondered that himself. Inspired by teachers in his family, he'd given up a well-paying job to teach but the ninth-grade class he'd gotten wasn't what he bargained for.

Because Boland had spent a year teaching English in China, he figured he had a "leg up" on a job at Manhattan's Union Street School, "a new combined middle and high school" that focused on history and international studies. Teaching there, he'd been led to believe, was a dream job and, since he'd already worked with “promising” but disadvantaged New York-area minority students through Project Advance, he thought he knew the kind of fresh-faced students he’d have.

Instead, what he found in the classroom that fall were sullen, attitudinal, sometimes violent young adults, many (if not most) of whom were dealing with absentee parents, drug abuse, poverty, pregnancy, and bullying. Some of his new ninth-grade students were in their very late teens; many were unable to write in complete sentences or do age-appropriate schoolwork. At least one barely spoke English.

And yet, with a Hollywood-happy ending on his mind, Boland persevered. He hoped to connect with the kids, though they were often uncontrollable. He dreamed they would eventually learn something, though they usually ignored his lessons. And when the year was over, he had considered staying at Union Street but he just couldn’t.

“I so wish it were a different ending for me and for the kids,” says Boland, “but some stories have to end like a seventies movie – gritty, real, and sad.”

The solution to the country’s school- and grade-based issues, says author Ed Boland, is a multi-faceted one, beginning with more education for the educators. There are other fixes, too, and “The Battle for Room 314” offers them.

But that’s not all: Boland, overall, tells a story that’s both shocking and unsurprising; part To Sir, With Love and part battlefield skirmish. There are occasional moments of too much information (both personal and classroom) but even more of frustration and missed opportunity (again, on two levels). What Boland shares left me feeling glum, mostly, but there are shadows of hope in this book – especially at the end, when he wraps up his story with a chapter of follow-ups.

Though you should be reminded that it’s representative of one man’s experience in one school, this book offers hard lessons. Still, if you’ve ever fretted about the state of education – on either side of the teacher’s desk – “The Battle for Room 314” goes to the head of the class.

Dear Nana,

No matter what I seem to do, I always seem to lose my voice when I go out on the weekends. Do you have any advice or home remedies for this? Thanks, love your articles!

Well thank you, dear heart! First off, one way to not lose your voice is to not go out every weekend & swallow more dicks than there are people named in the Bible. But, since that's no fun and you're only young once, here are some little tricks and home remedies. Salt water gargles and steam showers are a huge help. Also when you're in a place with loud music.... So anyplace that you gays gather, usually... be sure to lean in to talk into people's ears rather than shouting across the bar. And when you do have to talk over the music, try to do it in a deeper voice than a higher voice. Your voice will carry further and you won't lose your voice as easily. The higher part of your voice is the easiest to strain. It also makes you look like a big nelly bottom, but you probably already knew that. And if you still lose your voice by Monday, try becoming the mysterious, brooding one at your job who doesn't talk a lot. It's worth a try!

Dear Nana,

I have a friend who said that porn stars and strippers would sometimes inject something into their dick with a needle to make them super hard for a long time. I can't believe that's true. It sounds horrifying. So now we have a bet going to find out which one of us is right. Can you settle the bet?

Sad to tell you, you owe your buddy some cold hard cash. Cash that to get that hard might have been injected with Trimex. Trimex is a drug that can be injected into the penis to help with erectile dysfunction. Now, obviously, most of the men pile driving twinks on camera for cash don't actually have erectile dysfunction but what they do have is a schedule to keep. Long gone are the days on porn sets where the whole crew had to wait around for "Rick the Dick" to get hard. And since Viagra can sometimes have visible side effects like flushed cheeks or runny nose, many porn stars prefer this simple "prick" of a needle to give them an au natural, faux-natural boner that could break a brick! I know it doesn't sound fun or sexy... but porn is a lot like breakfast sausage: you don't really want to see how either of them is made.

*Do you have problems? Of course you do!!

Whore--Scopes

Aquarius

Jan 20 – Feb 18

Maybe if you removed last week's meals from your teeth, your breath would be a little more tolerable.

Pisces

Feb 19 – Mar 20

Your anger issues are catching up with you. Just talking to you for more than a minute seems to make people very angry.

Aries

Mar 21 – Apr 19

You are such a people person. You love to be around people. Sadly, no one wants to be around you.

Taurus

Apr 20 – May 20

You're the life of the party when you've had a few. Now if you could only stop at a few, you wouldn't be such an asshole.

Gemini

May 21 – Jun 20

It's time to find a new stylist. Your hair looks like it came out of a Play Doh fun factory.

Cancer

Jun 21 – Jul 22

If you want to look a little more classy, let's start with not shopping for shoes at K-Mart.

Leo

Jul 23 – Aug 22

That "Just For Men" treatment you gave yourself isn't fooling anyone. That color doesn't exist in nature unless you're trying to look like a black hole.

Virgo

Aug 23 – Sep 22

The only way your Facebook posts could be any more boring is if you just took pictures of concrete.

Libra

Sep 23 – Oct 22

Stop blaming Grindr for you not getting your messages. The truth is, no one is messaging you.

Scorpio

Oct 23 – Nov 21

Congratulations on quitting smoking. Now find something else to replace it so that you're not a raging asshole anymore.

Sagittarius

Nov 22 – Dec 21

Please think about losing some weight. The folds are getting so large that you could rent them out as affordable housing.

Capricorn

Dec 22 – Jan 19

Gas prices are getting lower and lower. Perhaps this is a good time for you to go away, permanently.
