Welcome to Paradise!

It was 50 years ago that police raided a gay club in New York City called The Stonewall Inn.

Over the next week, riots broke out protesting the raid. This was the beginning of the gay pride movement when LGBT people said they would no longer be silent about who they were.

Gay Pride is a way to honor those brave people.

Enjoy!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

One of my favorite things to do in Key West, is to get out on a scooter and explore Key West.

Scooters are a great way to explore with a full view of everything around you. No special licenses are required so anyone with a driver's license can rent one. If you have never ridden a scooter before, make sure you let the rental shop give you a tutorial and stay off the busy roads until you really get the hang of it. Helmets are not required in Key West but are certainly a good idea.

Once you've gotten your feet wet and you feel confident going out on the main roads, here are a few places worth exploring.

Head to Southernmost Point and get a picture next to the buoy.

Mallory Square is a great place to see sunset and watch the different entertainers put on free shows, but don't forget to tip.

Head down to the Edward B. Knight Pier also known as the White Street Pier. You can't take the scooter on the pier so park the scooter and walk to the end and take in the view.

While you're in the area stop in to see the West Martello Tower. The West Martello was built during the civil war and is now managed by the Key West Garden Club. You will find many native trees there, and it's also a certified wildlife habitat and a certified butterfly habitat.

Take a cruise along South Roosevelt Boulevard and see the ocean on one side and protected wetlands on the other.

Through all of this, remember to stay safe, and enjoy the ride!

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

What is the most important information I should know about BIKTARVY®?

BIKTARVY may cause serious side effects:

- ▶ Worsening of hepatitis B (HBV) infection. If you have both HIV-1 and HBV and stop taking BIKTARVY, your HBV may suddenly get worse. Do not stop taking BIKTARVY without first talking to your healthcare provider, as they will need to monitor your health.

Who should not take BIKTARVY?

Do not take BIKTARVY if you take:

- ▶ dofetilide
- ▶ rifampin
- ▶ any other medicines to treat HIV-1

What are the other possible side effects of BIKTARVY?

Serious side effects of BIKTARVY may also include:

- ▶ Changes in your immune system. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections. Tell your healthcare provider if you have any new symptoms after you start taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys. If you develop new or worse kidney problems, they may tell you to stop taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Too much lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis), which is a serious but rare medical emergency that can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: weakness or being more tired than usual, unusual muscle pain, being short of breath or fast breathing, stomach pain with nausea and vomiting, cold or blue hands and feet, feel dizzy or lightheaded, or a fast or abnormal heartbeat.

- ▶ Severe liver problems, which in rare cases can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow, dark "tea-colored" urine, light-colored stools, loss of appetite for several days or longer, nausea, or stomach-area pain.

The most common side effects of BIKTARVY in clinical studies were diarrhea (6%), nausea (5%), and headache (5%). Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effects that bother you or don't go away.

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking BIKTARVY?

- ▶ All your health problems. Be sure to tell your healthcare provider if you have or have had any kidney or liver problems, including hepatitis virus infection.
- ▶ All the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, antacids, laxatives, vitamins, and herbal supplements. BIKTARVY and other medicines may affect each other. Keep a list of all your medicines and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist, and ask if it is safe to take BIKTARVY with all of your other medicines.
- ▶ If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if BIKTARVY can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ If you are breastfeeding (nursing) or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed. HIV-1 can be passed to the baby in breast milk.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Ask your healthcare provider if BIKTARVY is right for you.

Please see Important Facts about BIKTARVY, including important warnings, on the following page.

IMPORTANT FACTS

This is only a brief summary of important information about BIKTARVY[®] and does not replace talking to your healthcare provider about your condition and your treatment.

MOST IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY may cause serious side effects, including:

- Worsening of hepatitis B (HBV) infection. If you have both HIV-1 and HBV, your HBV may suddenly get worse if you stop taking BIKTARVY. Do not stop taking BIKTARVY without first talking to your healthcare provider, as they will need to check your health regularly for several months.

ABOUT BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY is a complete, 1-pill, once-a-day prescription medicine used to treat HIV-1 in adults. It can either be used in people who have never taken HIV-1 medicines before, or people who are replacing their current HIV-1 medicines and whose healthcare provider determines they meet certain requirements.

BIKTARVY does not cure HIV-1 or AIDS. HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

Do NOT take BIKTARVY if you also take a medicine that contains:

- dofetilide
- rifampin
- any other medicines to treat HIV-1

BEFORE TAKING BIKTARVY

Tell your healthcare provider all your medical conditions, including if you:

- Have or have had any kidney or liver problems, including hepatitis infection.
- Are pregnant or plan to become pregnant.
- Are breastfeeding (nursing) or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed if you have HIV-1 because of the risk of passing HIV-1 to your baby.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take:

- Keep a list that includes all prescription and over-the-counter medicines, antacids, laxatives, vitamins, and herbal supplements, and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist.
- Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that interact with BIKTARVY.

POSSIBLE SIDE EFFECTS OF BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY can cause serious side effects, including:

- Those in the “Most Important Information About BIKTARVY” section.
- Changes in your immune system.
- New or worse kidney problems, including kidney failure.

LGBT Book Reviews by Terri Schlichenmeyer

"THE STONEWALL RIOTS: COMING OUT IN THE STREETS" BY GAYLE E. PITMAN
c.2019, Abrams Books for Young Readers | $17.99 | 208 pages

To anybody else, that tchotchke would be worthless.

To you, though, it oozes with memories, and that's why you keep it: because it represents special people, remarkable times, or things you hold in your heart. One glance, and you instantly recall something you want to remember, so in "Stonewall Riots" by Gayle E. Pitman, take a look at fifty objects that represent LGBT history.

Ancient statues and classic paintings can tell you a lot about what people did long ago, and what they thought or liked. The same goes with items that are modern, although some accounts get "complicated – especially if that story differs depending on who tells it," says Pitman. That's what happened in at least part of the tale of gay liberation: few records were kept, newspapers were mostly silent, and key players have died. Even so, she says, there are enough objects to tell a story.

She begins with a basic history of Greenwich Village in New York City, and the Jefferson Livery Stable, which housed horses long before it became Bonnie's Stonewall Inn, and then just the Stonewall Inn. There's a possibility, says Pitman, that the word "Stonewall" might have been "a coded welcome message to lesbians."

Back then, being gay or lesbian meant almost certain persecution but a gay man named Harry Hay and three of his friends knew that the best way to work against discrimination was to organize. They started the Mattachine Society in 1950, and Pitman includes a photo of one of their early meetings. Five years later, Del Martin and Phyllis Lyon started the Daughters of Bilitis, an organization for lesbians.

And yet, the discrimination continued and “in 1966, resistance was in the air.” African Americans had been fighting for civil rights for “quite some time,” and antiwar protests were just starting to organize. Small uprisings had been staged on behalf of LGBT people in California, while in New York, LGBT individuals were getting pretty tired of police harassment, Mafia shake-downs, and raids on their hangouts.

And on June 28, 1969, their simmering anger boiled over...

Do ten-year-olds have difficulty grasping happenings in their great-grandparents' day? It may seem so, which is why parents will be glad that “The Stonewall Riots” is written in the way that it is.

Using photographs, matchbook covers, clothing, and other ephemera, author Gayle E. Pitman makes LGBT history into something relatable for its intended audience because, as you know, kids are big on keeping mementos and special objects. Through the stories of selected items, Pitman explains the events surrounding the night of the riot and she draws a few threads between then and now, but she's careful not to be too hasty in filling in historical blanks. Those unknowns serve to leave kids hanging a bit, and they heighten the excitement and outrage of what happened.

While this is a book for children ages ten and up, this book is also for anyone under the age of 55. You wouldn't remember the Riots first-hand, so reading “The Stonewall Riots” is absolutely worthwhile.

MY BIG GAY LIFE

Brad Loekle

TOKY-NO

It's no secret that I travel a lot and that I love it. I truly enjoy seeing other places and cultures. And I can assure you that I'm not the American who seeks out a Micky D's the minute I land on foreign shores. That being said, I can't deny the fact I am an American. I mean, I've tried to pull off being Canadian just because people seem to like them more. But, in the end, my unshakable New Yorkness always betrays my ruse. The timbre and volume of my voice are distinctly American. As is my passion for ice in everything I drink and in "Winter is coming" level air conditioning in hotel rooms.

Nowhere I've ever been has it been more obvious that I'm "not from here" as it was on my recent visit to Tokyo. I was excited to finally visit this iconic city and was, in many ways, impressed by its forest-like city gardens and awe-inspiring sushi game. Yet it was also never so painfully obvious that I am a big American. And the emphasis is on big. They don't make Tokyo in my size. And what's shocking about this is I'm not even that big by American standards. Certainly not straight-American standards. Hell, I'm positively athletic for a Wisconsin State Fair! And then I slowly waddle down the scale into Hollywood "character actor" fat. But dear, fictional Christ am I large in Tokyo. My small, but amenity-filled hotel in the Shinjuku district of Tokyo was my first tip off to what my long weekend here would be like. The hotel's soft, cotton robe barely covered both my nipples (if I exhaled and beveled) while just barely clearing my right testicle... which is my most pendulous of the set. They provided two different kinds of slippers: a soft, terry pair and a rather gorgeous, chocolate brown leather pair. Both of which made me look like Buffalo Bill trying to slip into the heels of one of his victims. To say I looked like Gayzilla, bursting out of my robe and baby doll slippers is an understatement.

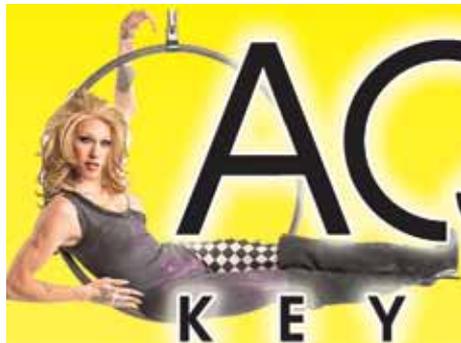

There were glaring cultural differences too. I'm more accustomed to the laisse faire customer service of France or Spain, rather than the kabuki theater level of gestures and posturing that is common even in a Starbucks transaction in Japan. All money, bills, business cards, etc. are exchanged with both hands holding them and a bow. Almost like we're all deities making offerings to each other. At first, I was impressed with this formality, but quickly grew to find it exhausting. I bought a Coke Zero and bag of Cheetos; it shouldn't require treating the payment like it's a dowry for your twink Gaysian son. Oh, by the way, the Cheetos were... special. I have no idea what cheese they were aiming for, the wedge on the bag vaguely implied a Gouda. But I can tell you that this bag more closely resembled the flavor profile of cheesy Captain Crunch. It took me the whole bag to figure that out. The whole bag.

I did have some of the best sushi of my life there. Which should come as no surprise. So good that I think I have to give up American sushi for a few months so I don't judge it too harshly in the wake of Japan's mouth-watering marvelousness. And my best sushi experience in Tokyo also came with the worst dinner theater. It wasn't supposed to, but Tokyo decided to really roll out the red carpet for this tourist. In the middle of my delightful dinner with friends, the beautifully dressed Japanese woman next to me made the inconvenient choice to die at the dinner table. I don't mean figuratively. She didn't tell a bad story or fart during the miso soup course. She just died a death. Her death, to be specific. Within seconds, her entire (funeral) party was screaming and waving their arms. The manager ran over and laid her down on the ground... in front of our table. Who knew we'd paid for ring-side seats?! As the manager began CPR, the hostess dialed 911 and was trying to scream the details over everyone else's screams. Just as the paramedics arrived, she gasped back to life! And then, as her first act after being reborn... shat herself. They then picked up shitty-britches and put her on a gurney and took her away in the ambulance. Our waitress, after refilling our waters as if nothing had happened, then began to mop the general area where Kim Chi had cockied her kimono. I excused myself to dry heave in the bathroom and general towel off the emotional residue of the situation, only to have the door lock jam. After banging on the door for what felt like 15 minutes, the manager... still reeling from the scat scene he'd just been a part of, broke down the door to let me out.

I am very glad I finally got to check off Tokyo from my bucket list. And very glad to have just boarded my Delta flight back to Los Angeles.

STAY SAFE RIDE SMART

A bicycle is a great way to get around, but stay safe by following the rules of the road.

- A bicycle is like any other vehicle, so you must follow the rules of the road.
 - Bicycles must follow all traffic controls such as signs and signals.
 - Bicycles cannot travel the wrong way down a one way street.
 - Bicycles must be ridden on the right hand side of a two way street.
 - You must signal all turns with hand signals.
 - Headsets cannot be worn while cycling.
 - Riding a bike while under the influence can get you a DUI in Florida.
- Lights are required between sunset and sunrise
 - A white light is required in front and a red light in the rear.
- Riding on the sidewalk or crosswalk is permitted but with these provisions
 - Pedestrians have the right of way. Yield to pedestrians.
 - When passing pedestrians, you must signal your intent before doing so.
- Anyone under the age of 16 must wear a helmet.

Here are a few additional tips that you may find helpful.

- Lock up your bike at all times. If not, you'll probably be walking home.
 - Pass the lock through the frame and the front tire.
 - Be careful not to lock your bike to an adjoining bike by accident.
 - If you lock your bike to private property, it may be impounded.
- When approaching occupied cars, be ready to react if the door opens.

Enjoy your time seeing the best of Key West!

PROPER BATHHOUSE ETIQUETTE

A while ago, my friend Michael was telling me a story about an encounter he had and while telling me the details, he spoke of some horrendous bathhouse etiquette. It was at that time that I realized, many others may need a refresher course on proper bathhouse etiquette.

Remember, everyone is there for the same purpose. No one goes to the bathhouse to meet the love of their life (though it has been known to happen.) If you're looking for a boyfriend, start with Match.com.

Shower before you start. Don't assume that the shower you took 2 hours ago is good enough. Your butt crack can get pretty stinky in two hours.

Loud talking is usually not a good idea. Quiet talk about what they're into or maybe even their name is fine. Very few guys want to know what you had for dinner. If it's not going to get in the way when you're getting pounded, they don't need to know about it.

Not everyone you're interested in will be interested in you. If you wander into the steam room and the muscle god immediately gets up to leave, he may have just had too much steam. If this happens again in another location, he may not be interested. Don't stalk him.

Also, be respectful of those that take an interest in you. If someone puts his hand on your leg, regardless of how old and fat he may be, gently push it away. Don't be rude. That will be you in 20 years! Should he be persistent, hand him this article and advise him to read the above paragraph.

Bathhouses are supposed to be dark. Using a pocket light or cell phone to see what people look like is never a good idea. You may piss someone off that didn't want to be seen. In addition, no one is as good looking as your imagination. Trust me, in a dark room, most guys look better and if you just lay back and enjoy the ride, you won't even have to know how old your trick really was.

If you start some action in a public area, don't be upset if some guys want to stand around and watch. If you don't want to be watched, take it to a room.

Should you encounter a little group getting started, it's acceptable to watch. If they're interested in you joining, they'll let you know with a nod, smile or a grope. Don't join in without an invitation. If you try to crash the party, it's likely that all the action will stop and everyone else that was watching, will be pretty annoyed, and rightfully so. They were practicing good etiquette and just watching.

Reciprocation is the key. There are lots of guys there that only want to suck as many cocks as they can. If you know that from earlier quiet conversation, then it's acceptable to walk away once you've made your contribution to the cause. If someone has worked on you for the last 20 minutes to get your goody prize, you should at least offer to assist them in their efforts. They may not want that, but at least you offered. It's rude to dump and run.

Just because he's hot doesn't mean he can charge your batteries. After you've been playing with someone, if it's not working for you, excuse yourself and move on. Be careful with lies such as "I've already gotten off three times" and "I'm not a bottom" because it's likely that in 10 minutes, he's going to see you in the hallway getting fucked by someone and shooting a load all over the place. A simple "this isn't working" gets you out the door with no worries. Plus, if it wasn't working for you, it probably wasn't working for him either.

I'm not going to lecture you all on safe sex. You're all adults and you know the risks. Assume everyone is positive and you can't go wrong. If you let someone in the backdoor, don't assume they're going to wear a condom. To be totally safe, stay on your back so you can see what's going on. Some guys may try to take it off when you can't see.

Know the rules. Bathhouse employees are not known to be the most courteous and by ignoring the rules, you'll only make things worse. Find out if you're expected to strip the bed when you leave and if you may exchange your towel. Also, know exactly how much time you have and if you're within 30 minutes of your "out" time, go up and renew now. Having your room or locker number called out in the middle of the best blowjob you've ever had can really kill the moment.

Tipping is not a dirty word. No, I'm not talking about tipping your trick (that's a whole other subject) but don't be afraid to tip the staff when you leave. It's likely that you'll be back a few times to the same place and the staff will remember you. Also, if you want to exchange your towel a few times, bring a tip each time. The employee will actually look forward to giving you a fresh towel rather than scowling at you.

Don't call ahead to ask "how busy is it?" They make their money on occupancy. If everyone called ahead, no one would go. They're not going to tell you (or they'll lie). If you're that lazy or cheap, try Grindr.

These guidelines aren't just for bathhouses. These should be applied in bookstores, guesthouses, backrooms, and anywhere else guys get together to get it on!

THE CITY OF KEY WEST

P.O. BOX 1409
KEY WEST, FL 33041-1409

Greetings from the Mayor

To our Key West PRIDE locals and visitors,

I am so happy to welcome you to the very first city in the United States that elected an openly gay mayor! That election in 1983 marked the beginning of a long list of gay men and women who were elected or appointed to high profile positions on our island. The City embraces its diversity as a source of strength—and that's never more evident than it is during Pride Week.

On this 50th anniversary of the Stonewall Riots, we can acknowledge historic achievements in equality while recognizing the challenges still faced by the LGBTQ community at large. We are proud to live in a place that lives by its motto "One Human Family."

While you are here this week, I hope you experience the splendors that draw and keep so many of us here: the scent of night-blooming jasmine as you bike around the island, the variety of fresh fish served at our many award-winning restaurants, the sight of the famous "green burst" at sunset on Mallory Square or Fort Zachary Taylor beach, the excitement of Duval Street's vibrant nightlife, and the most compelling attribute of all:

THE PEOPLE OF KEY WEST! It is my hope that you will meet and make friends while you are here to celebrate PRIDE. Thank you for being a part of what makes Key West so spectacular.

With warmest regards,

Teri Johnston
Mayor

“We, the undersigned laity of the Florida Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, are deeply grieved and heartbroken by results of the Special Session of the General Conference in St. Louis. ...We regret how the United Methodist Church has hurt our LGBTQIA+ family for decades, and how the recent adoption of the Traditional Plan has caused further pain already experienced by the LGBTQIA+ community. We believe the life and teaching of Jesus Christ reflects God’s love for all. ...”

“We wish to remain in dialogue with those who have different voices, and pray that we can become one church together celebrating and respecting the beautiful diversity of all God’s people wherever they may live. ...”

ASK NANA

E-mail your questions to nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

I met a really great guy and we both sort of fell for each other immediately. There's only one hitch: after our 4th date he dropped the bombshell that he isn't really single. In fact, he's had a partner for 14 years! They've had an open relationship most of that time, but the he feels like what he's found with me is something different. Their openness had, until now, just been about random hook ups. While they, themselves, haven't had any sex together in almost two years. He wants to keep seeing me... and frankly I want to keep seeing him too. But is this all too much baggage? Am I just setting myself up for disaster? I don't want to end up in a Lifetime movie but I also don't want to just hard pass on a really great guy just because his life situation is more complicated than I would have chosen. Do you see anything good coming from this? Help!

Well, sugar bear, this is a seven-layer bean dip of emotions to unpack! So much so that I'm only answering your question this month. So, let's get cracking!

First of all, let's face it... unless you're still in your twenties, all men are going to come with more baggage than we'd like. Ourselves included. Love is a battlefield and the longer you stay in the war, the more scars you're going to have. And I'm not a fan of only ever taking the path of least resistance. Real relationships, the ones that last, take a lot of hard work. So, don't fool yourself in the beginning by thinking an easy start means clear skies the rest of your days.

I'm not a huge fan of him having kept this information from you in the beginning, especially if he's the only who pursued you. But, only waiting a few dates to tell you is about as honest as you can probably expect. He's not really in the easiest of situations to begin with it. And, let's be honest, it's hard to break up with a personal trainer you don't like after a few weeks, more or less a live-in boyfriend of a decade and a half. You can't blame someone for trying to avoid a lot of pain when they don't see an emotional vine they can swing to from where they are.

And let's face it: if it wasn't you it would eventually be someone else. It seems like he's been compartmentalizing his life into sexless companionship and then anonymous passion. Not giving any thought to the fact he could have a lover and a companion who are actually both the same person! Crazy idea, I know!! So, for better or worse (and only time will tell how much of each there is), you seem to have awoken that idea in him. That's a good thing. It speaks to the real emotions and connections you are starting from together.

So, where do you go from here? Well, first of all, you need to decide what you're okay with in this relationship. Make no mistakes, Jolene, you are basically a mistress right now. That's not to brand you with a Scarlett letter. I'm no Judge Judy. But it is the reality of the situation. Are you okay with, at least for now, sharing this man's time and energy with his partner? Are you okay with the partner knowing... or NOT knowing about you? How long are you okay with all these things? Do you see and want the endgame of this to be you and your beau together exclusively? Or are you okay with being the "other woman" in his life indefinitely?

None of these are easy questions, nor are they things you really answer without knowing where he stands. So in-between the tawdry titillating parts of this new love, make sure you're both talking about the big boy stuff. Don't just let the chips land where they may... because these chips are a bit more flammable than most. And no one wants their figurative (or literal) house burned down by a rageful house husband. #ThoughtsAndPrayers.

DO YOU HAVE PROBLEMS? OF COURSE YOU DO! WHY NOT LET NANA HELP YOU?!

WHORE--SCOPES

AQUARIUS JAN 20 - FEB 18

What is that smell?? Even seagulls are avoiding you.

PISCES FEB 19 - MAR 20

So I heard you tell someone that today was your cheat day. What was your excuse for the preceding 5 months?

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 19

If you see an accountant to check on your financial health, he's going to tell you to pull the plug.

TAURUS APR 20 - MAY 20

If you put in any less effort at work, you would be a customer.

GEMINI MAY 21 - JUN 20

So I heard you plan on giving up drinking. That may be the most effort you've ever put into anything ever.

CANCER JUN 21 - JUL 22

Class is not automatic, it has to be learned. You need to go back to class!!

LEO JUL 23 - AUG 22

Your clothes are so far out of style that even The Salvation Army rejected them.

VIRGO AUG 23 - SEP 22

No, taking a swim at the pool does not count as bathing!

LIBRA SEP 23 - OCT 22

You're never on time. You've said "I'm late" so often that the State of Georgia is going to ban you!

SCORPIO OCT 23 - NOV 21

You thought being a vegetarian would be kind to animals, but you're eating all of their food!

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 - DEC 21

If you're going to complain about your weight, it would probably seem more sincere if you weren't eating a corn dog.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

So your idea of dieting was to not eat any more sweets, but you're not eating any less either!
