Brief Summary of Patient Information about GENVOYA

GENVOYA (jen-VOY-uh) (elvitegravir, cobicistat, emtricitabine, and tenofovir alafenamide) tablets

Important: Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that should not be taken with GENVOYA.

There may be new information about GENVOYA. This information is only a summary and does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider about your medical condition or treatment.

What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?

GENVOYA can cause serious side effects, including:

- Build-up of lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis). Lactic acidosis may happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Lactic acidosis is a serious medical emergency that can lead to death. Lactic acidosis can be hard to identify early, because the symptoms could seem like symptoms of other health problems. Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms, which could be signs of lactic acidosis:

- feel very weak or tired
- have unusual (not normal) muscle pain
- have trouble breathing
- have stomach pain with nausea or vomiting
- feel cold, especially in your arms and legs
- feel dizzy or lightheaded
- have a fast or irregular heartbeat

- Severe liver problems. Severe liver problems may happen in people who take GENVOYA. In some cases, these liver problems can lead to death. Your liver may become large and you may develop fat in your liver.

Call your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following symptoms of liver problems:

- your skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow (jaundice)
- dark “tea-colored” urine
- light-colored bowel movements (stools)
- loss of appetite for several days or longer
- nausea
- stomach pain

- You may be more likely to get lactic acidosis or severe liver problems if you are female, very overweight (obese), or have been taking GENVOYA for a long time.
- Worsening of Hepatitis B infection. GENVOYA is not for use to treat chronic hepatitis B virus (HBV). If you have HBV infection and take GENVOYA, your HBV may get worse (flare-up) if you stop taking GENVOYA. A “flare-up” is when your HBV infection suddenly returns in a worse way than before.
 - Do not run out of GENVOYA. Refill your prescription or talk to your healthcare provider before your GENVOYA is all gone.
 - Do not stop taking GENVOYA without first talking to your healthcare provider.
 - If you stop taking GENVOYA, your healthcare provider will need to check your health often and do blood tests regularly for several months to check your HBV infection. Tell your healthcare provider about any new or unusual symptoms you may have after you stop taking GENVOYA.

What is GENVOYA?

GENVOYA is a prescription medicine that is used without other HIV-1 medicines to treat HIV-1 in people 12 years of age and older:

- who have not received HIV-1 medicines in the past or
- to replace their current HIV-1 medicines in people who have been on the same HIV-1 medicines for at least 6 months, have an amount of HIV-1 in their blood (“viral load”) that is less than 50 copies/mL, and have never failed past HIV-1 treatment

HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

GENVOYA contains the prescription medicines elvitegravir (VITEKTA®), cobicistat (TYBOST®), emtricitabine (EMTRIVA®) and tenofovir alafenamide.

It is not known if GENVOYA is safe and effective in children under 12 years of age.

When used to treat HIV-1 infection, GENVOYA may:

- Reduce the amount of HIV-1 in your blood. This is called “viral load”.
- Increase the number of CD4+ (T) cells in your blood that help fight off other infections.

Reducing the amount of HIV-1 and increasing the CD4+ (T) cells in your blood may help improve your immune system. This may reduce your risk of death or getting infections that can happen when your immune system is weak (opportunistic infections).

GENVOYA does not cure HIV-1 infection or AIDS.

You must stay on continuous HIV-1 therapy to control HIV-1 infection and decrease HIV-related illnesses.

Avoid doing things that can spread HIV-1 infection to others:

- Do not share or re-use needles or other injection equipment.
- Do not share personal items that can have blood or body fluids on them, like toothbrushes and razor blades.
- Do not have any kind of sex without protection. Always practice safer sex by using a latex or polyurethane condom to lower the chance of sexual contact with semen, vaginal secretions, or blood.

Ask your healthcare provider if you have any questions about how to prevent passing HIV-1 to other people.

Who should not take GENVOYA?

Do not take GENVOYA if you also take a medicine that contains:

- alfuzosin hydrochloride (Uroxatral®)
- carbamazepine (Carbatrol®, Eptol®, Equetro®, Tegretol®, Tegretol-XR®, Teril®)
- cisapride (Propulsid®, Propulsid Quicksolv®)
- ergot-containing medicines, including: dihydroergotamine mesylate (D.H.E. 45®, Migranal®), ergotamine tartrate (Cafergot®, Migergot®, Ergostat®, Medihaler Ergotamine®, Wigraine®, Wigrettes®), and methylergonovine maleate (Ergotrate®, Methergine®)
- lovastatin (Advicor®, Altoprev®, Mevacor®)
- midazolam, when taken by mouth
- phenobarbital (Luminal®)
- phenytoin (Dilantin®, Phenytek®)
- pimozone (Orap®)
- rifampin (Rifadin®, Rifamate®, Rifater®, Rimactane®)
- sildenafil (Revatio®), when used for treating lung problems
- simvastatin (Simcor®, Vytorin®, Zocor®)
- triazolam (Halcion®)
- the herb St. John's wort or a product that contains St. John's wort

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking GENVOYA?

Before taking GENVOYA, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- have liver problems including hepatitis B infection
- have kidney or bone problems

- have any other medical conditions
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if GENVOYA can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking GENVOYA.

Pregnancy registry: there is a pregnancy registry for women who take HIV-1 medicines during pregnancy. The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. Talk with your healthcare provider about how you can take part in this registry.

- are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed if you take GENVOYA.
 - You should not breastfeed if you have HIV-1 because of the risk of passing HIV-1 to your baby.
 - At least one of the medicines in GENVOYA can pass to your baby in your breast milk. It is not known if the other medicines in GENVOYA can pass into your breast milk.
 - Talk with your healthcare provider about the best way to feed your baby.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements. Other medicines may affect how GENVOYA works.

Some medicines may interact with GENVOYA. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

- You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for a list of medicines that interact with GENVOYA.
- Do not start a new medicine without telling your healthcare provider. Your healthcare provider can tell you if it is safe to take GENVOYA with other medicines.

How should I take GENVOYA?

- Take GENVOYA exactly as your healthcare provider tells you to take it. GENVOYA is taken by itself (not with other HIV-1 medicines) to treat HIV-1 infection.
- GENVOYA is usually taken 1 time each day.
- Take GENVOYA with food.
- If you need to take a medicine for indigestion (antacid) that contains aluminum and magnesium hydroxide or calcium carbonate during treatment with GENVOYA, take it at least 2 hours before or after you take GENVOYA.

Important: Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that should not be taken with GENVOYA.

How should I take GENVOYA? (continued)

- Do not change your dose or stop taking GENVOYA without first talking with your healthcare provider. Stay under a healthcare provider's care when taking GENVOYA.
- Do not miss a dose of GENVOYA.
- If you take too much GENVOYA, call your healthcare provider or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away.
- When your GENVOYA supply starts to run low, get more from your healthcare provider or pharmacy. This is very important because the amount of virus in your blood may increase if the medicine is stopped for even a short time. The virus may develop resistance to GENVOYA and become harder to treat.

What are the possible side effects of GENVOYA?

GENVOYA may cause serious side effects, including:

- See "What is the most important information I should know about GENVOYA?"
- Changes in body fat can happen in people who take HIV-1 medicine. These changes may include increased amount of fat in the upper back and neck ("buffalo hump"), breast, and around the middle of your body (trunk). Loss of fat from the legs, arms and face may also happen. The exact cause and long-term health effects of these conditions are not known.
- Changes in your immune system (Immune Reconstitution Syndrome) can happen when you start taking HIV-1 medicines. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections that have been hidden in your body for a long time. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you start having any new symptoms after starting your HIV-1 medicine.
- New or worse kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys before you start and while you are taking GENVOYA. Your healthcare provider may tell you to stop taking GENVOYA if you develop new or worse kidney problems.
- Bone problems can happen in some people who take GENVOYA. Bone problems may include bone pain, softening or thinning (which may lead to fractures). Your healthcare provider may need to do tests to check your bones.

Genvoja™

elvitegravir 150mg/cobicistat 150mg/emtricitabine
200mg/tenofovir alafenamide 10mg tablets

The most common side effect of GENVOYA is nausea. Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away.

- These are not all the possible side effects of GENVOYA. For more information, ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist.
- Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

General information about the safe and effective use of GENVOYA.

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes other than those listed in a Patient Information leaflet. Do not use GENVOYA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give GENVOYA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Brief Summary summarizes the most important information about GENVOYA. If you would like more information, talk with your healthcare provider. You can ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist for information about GENVOYA that is written for health professionals.

For more information, call 1-800-445-3235 or go to www.GENVOYA.com.

Keep GENVOYA and all medicines out of reach of children.

THE PERFECT STOCKING STUFFER

by: Brad Loekle

Now that we have marriage equality in the United States, many of us will face new challenges we never anticipated. Many of us will now know what it's like to go through the endless holiday pain of being single in a married world. Sure we finally have over 1,700 rights and benefits previously denied to all our community for no good reason; but does that really make up for having to constantly see the crestfallen & slightly judgmental looks of friends and family when they ask "are you seeing anyone, dear?" We now face the same holiday emotional Russian roulette that previously was only really understood by "handsome" women and our loyal fat hagdom of straight sisters. One of the things I used to love about being gay was that once you came out you no longer had to deal with familial or societal pressures to "settle down", get married, have kids, move closer to home, etc. We were all free to be oppressed degenerates living cloistered lives in gorgeous cities all around the world. And I loved it! But as we've slowly changed the hearts and minds of 'Merica, I've noticed that we're quickly inheriting all the good AND bad parts of being considered just the same as everyone else. And for those who genuinely want that sort of life, it's not really a problem. But for those of us who are perpetually single and covered in some amount of body glitter from the fact we don't go more than 9 days in a row without getting hugged by a drag queen... this new world kinda sucks. Especially at the holidays when family tends to be the most focused on things like marriage, family, children, and all those sorts of things. So I've devised a solution for those of us in the "other" category of even our own community. It's a little pricey but, hey, it's the holidays: treat yourself! And here's the solution...

Hire a hooker to play your boyfriend for the few days you're home for the holidays. I mean a real hooker, of course. A proper escort. Maybe even a full on porn star for some of you rich bitches. In the sex work world, this sort of booking is known as "the boyfriend experience". It involves some sex but it also includes that in the day or two that you hire them they go to dinner with you, attend family functions, make polite dinner conversation and basically make you the envy of everyone you meet because this hot piece of tale is just gaga over little old you! Also, you'll get to fuck a porn star in your childhood bedroom. And trust me, I speak from personal experience when I say as he's pressing his rock hard body into you and biting your neck like you're a Kristen Stewart body double... you'll see your little gay inner child standing in the corner of your bedroom (by the Madonna poster) and he will be clapping his hands while he quietly cries tears of joy. Because "It Gets Better", right?

And what's great is that it doesn't even have to be the same hooker year to year! True love is hard to find even in the straight world. No one will be shocked when you come home with Antonio one year and then Damien the next. Especially when they all look like the stepped out of the International Male catalog you used to masturbate to when you were younger. Now, in fairness, this system won't work forever. I've got about 15 more years of it before everyone's gonna know that a 23 year old WWE looking bodybuilder isn't really fucking me because of my winning personality. But hey, any port in a storm, as they say. So until Mr. Right comes along, forgo the "I can't believe you're still single"'s from your aunts and then "my buddy's son is gay, you two should date or something"'s from your drunk uncles. You'll thank me later.

ZACHARY MOSES : MAN ABOUT TOWN

It's December and the venues of Key West are deep into their high season. The city of Key West officially kicked off the high season with Fantasy Fest at the end of October. This year I took my son to the Headdress Ball for the first time. The Headdress Ball is my absolute favorite of Fantasy Fest events. Every year the contestants wear progressively crazier headdresses and compete for prizes. I knew my son was old enough to truly appreciate them this year.

During intermission there was a performance by the "Aqua Nets" a troupe of drag queens that perform nightly at Aqua Night Club (711 Duval St.) When I revealed to my son that all the beautiful dancing women were actually men, he didn't believe me. He had to confirm this fact with several other guests around us. Once everyone else had settled his doubts, he just said "Whoa, this is awesome."

I love living in Key West and my son has now spent the majority of his life here. To him, nudity is normal, every fourth person is gay, and now he realizes that clothing and gender are not mutually exclusive. He has never had to deal with racism, sexism, homophobia or any sort of general hatred. Hopefully someday the rest of the world can join in our "One Human Family" moto.

As our festivities continue throughout December there are several notable events to be a part of. Among my personal favorites is "Bone Island Bare it All Weekend" which runs from December 3 to 6. You can find a calendar of their events at www.NakedKeyWest.com. Make sure to purchase the weekend pass which gets you unlimited access to the Island House (more than a $100 value), exclusive discounts, and savings at local shops and restaurants.

The Bone Island weekend pass can also get you admission to the Gay Key West House Party for only $15 (regularly $35). Clothing is required for this 1930's to 1940's themed event. This party is the rebirth of the famous Hanns Ebensten House Parties which put Gay Key West on the map in the 1970's and 1980's. The party will be held behind the Blue Macaw (400 Petronia St.) There will be food, drinks, and live music. The now yearly event celebrates the union of HE Travel, Alyson Adventures and Out West Adventures, three of the largest gay tour operators in the world.

After these events, the town gets a lot quieter until the last week of December; our busiest time of the year. We locals lovingly refer to that week as "Hell Week." There will be parties and shenanigans everywhere! If you make it to the New Orleans House (724 Duval) you can watch Sushi the drag queen being lowered in a giant shoe to ring in the New Year once again. Did I mention that I love it here?

FROM YOUR HOST

Welcome Naked Guys,

As always, we are very happy that you have joined us in Key West for Bone Island Bare It All. I am The Naked Realtor (Dean Townsend) and along with Pup (Kevin), we are the hosts for your fun-filled weekend. If this is your first time, please be sure to let us know so we can make sure you have the rundown on where to be and what to do.

As the founder of Bone Island Bare It All, I have often been asked how I came to be known as "The Naked Realtor." Well, the first time someone said it to my face, it was by one of our great local drag queens. During the Pride Fest Street Fair, Gassy Winds was performing up on the Duval Street stage and asked three of us to come up and assist her with the show. She did the normal thing, asking our names and where we lived. The other two guys answered, and then she came to me. I stated my name and that I am a Realtor here in Key West. Then she asked what I was known for, and I had no idea what she was talking about. Unexpectedly, Gassy grabbed my sarong and said, "Dean is The Naked Realtor!" There I was, standing on the stage in the middle of Duval Street, in front of a couple of hundred people, wearing nothing but my signature cowboy hat!

The name stuck and now most locals know me as that naked guy, The Naked Realtor. So now on to Pup... If you would like to know where his name came from, I have pictures.

If you have any questions, or need any assistance, please let us or any of our great volunteers know, and we will do our best to help you out. Have a great time at Bone Island Bare It All. Play Safe!

Spilling the hottest tea in Key West

Until our phone gets turned off for non payment, we'll be here to listen to the latest dish. We'd never use real names but I'll bet if you ask around, you'll find out who's doing who! If you have some hot gossip, email us at tea@qkeywest.com. We'll keep your name out of it because we know how to keep secrets!

Sorry I've been so quiet but my Commodore 64 got a virus and pouring NyQuil on it didn't help at all.

So much is going on I don't know where to begin.

Big changes coming up in the pink triangle. I'm just bursting at the seams to talk about it, or maybe that's just the beef and bean burrito I found in the dumpster at Taco Bell.

A certain local woke up at home wearing nothing but a towel from the garden bar. He doesn't know how he got home or where his clothes are. The towel has yet to be returned.

One of my favorite places to eat was shut down by the board of health for a few days. Don't worry, it's not one of the nice places you all eat at like Denny's. I can barely afford to eat at the soup kitchen!

It looks like one of our favorite bartenders may be unemployed soon. Remember, if you don't own the bar, you don't get to say who drinks for free!

“And Then I Danced” by Mark Segal

c.2015, Open Lens / Akashic Books $16.95 302 pages

Been there, done that.

Yep, you've had experience and you're willing to talk about it. Why not? Someone could learn from the things you did. Mistakes can be avoided. Or, at least, as in the new memoir “And Then I Danced” by Mark Segal, people will be entertained.

Not long after his birth in 1951, Mark Segal's parents were snatched from the middle class and shunted off to “the other side of the tracks” with the loss of their bodega. They became

“the only Jewish family in a South Philadelphia housing project,” which set the tone for Segal's outspokenness.

Indeed, when he was in grade school, he committed his “first political action” by refusing to sing a Christian song. When he was thirteen, his beloved Grandmom took him to his first Civil Rights event. By then, Segal knew that other boys peeped at ads for women's underwear, but he preferred studying the men's clothing pages. He knew he was different – but he also knew that he absolutely couldn't talk about it.

After learning that there were gay men in New York City,

Segal convinced his parents to send him there following his high school graduation. Having “no idea where to go” as he settled in, he began exploring his new city and, “After a few days of looking around,” he came across the Stonewall bar and a man who “was creating an organization called the Action Group.”

Organized activation suited Segal, and it became a job of sorts for him. He worked on behalf of gay pride marches and parades, a Gay Youth organization, and a Gay Alliance. He became politically active. He and friends interrupted live broadcasts with what they called “zaps,” which gained the attention of news media. That got them on camera, and arrested.

It was a different world by the mid-’70s, but there was still much to do. A friend asked why Segal didn’t start a gay newspaper in Philadelphia. And so, “Meet publisher Mark Segal.”

About half. That’s what you’ll find in the first half of “And Then I Danced.” Yep, there’s more – a second life, in a way – and it’s every bit as enjoyable to read.

With gentle humor and the slightest touch of sardonicism, Segal writes further about people he’s known, his newspaper, and a different kind of activism. That in-the-trenches stuff is great to read, partly because his narrative is indicative of the times in which it all happened. Readers also may, like me, be impressed with the creativity used to help gain LGBT equality.

But there’s more: Segal lets readers into his personal life: his loves, losses, and (spoiler alert!) a very happy ending. “Drama seems to follow me,” he writes, and readers will be glad for it.

It was nice to see this memoir cross my desk. I was getting tired of Big Star Bios and while there’s name-dropping in this book, it’s not egregious. No, it’s kinda fun and worth picking up, so be there with “And Then I Danced.” You’ll be glad you done that.

Ask Nana

E-mail your questions to nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

Fake tree or real tree? Or no tree?!

Well, I can go both ways, or rather ALL ways on this one. This is probably due to the fact that I've been alive for far too long and so have seen the pluses and minuses of all the tanenbaum options. My all time favorite is real tree. Because, well, it's a REAL TREE! Nothing beats that smell of pine to let you know it's winter and very soon you'll have to tolerate all the various friends and family that you can only really tolerate for the 12 days of Christmas... at best! But real trees are also a pain in the ass, not the cheapest commodity in The Keys and are much more likely to make your house burn down when the cat chews through the light cord. So, nowadays, I have a fake tree and I can tell you I don't mind it. I spent more than I should have on it but that way it looks like an actual tree and not just green garland with an erection. Then I buy a few spruce scented candles and, after a few egg noggs, I hardly remember that it's not a real tree. Or where my pants went! (I make really pungent nog!). I've never done no tree but then again, if I were Jewish I probably never would have done one. If no one's coming to your home for the holidays and you don't feel like it, I think no tree is fine. My only problem is shitty, weird fake trees. Stop trying to be interesting by buying a pink tinsel tree. If you're not shiny and unique enough on your own, a fucking tree isn't going to make up for that. The same goes for white trees, LED trees, etc. You can't match your Christmas tree to the color palette of your Living Room. It's not supposed to match your house... it's a TREE!

*Dear Nana,
What's your favorite holiday dish to enjoy?*

Joe Manganiello. Oh! You said "holiday" dish! Fine. Joe Mananiello in a Santa hat and a mistletoe jock strap.

*Do you have problems? Of course you do!!
Why not let Nana help you?! Send your questions to:
